Advances in Molten Salt Chemistry J. Braunstein, Gleb Mamantov, G. P. Smith, 2012-12-06 Molten salts are investigated by very diverse techniques and for different purposes and the results are reported in widely scattered journals. There is a need to keep investigators aware of progress in other specialties and to provide students with source and background material. Advances in Molten Salt Chemistry hopes to fill these needs by providing reviews of recent progress presented insofar as is reasonable with enough background material and commentary to be comprehensible to a nonspecialist. We prefer a discussion of underlying principles to the extent that they are known and we encourage authors to comment critically on the reliability of data, the utility of models and the cogency of ideas and theories. We take a broad view of the suitability of topics for inclusion in this series. Both fundamental and technological advances have a place here as do studies on materials related to molten salts like liquid silicates, very concentrated aqueous solutions, solutions of salts in liquid metals and solid electrolytes. We intend this series to serve the needs of those who investigate or use molten salts. We welcome suggestions of topics and suitable authors as well as comments on the strengths and shortcomings of what is published.

Ultra High Temperature Thermal Energy Storage Transfer and Conversion presents a comprehensive analysis of thermal energy storage systems operating at beyond 800 C. Editor Dr Alejandro Datas and his team of expert contributors from a variety of regions summarize the main technological options and the most relevant materials and characterization considerations to enable the reader to make the most effective and efficient decisions. This book helps the reader to solve the very specific challenges associated with working within an ultra high temperature energy storage setting. It condenses and summarizes the latest knowledge covering fundamentals, device design, materials selection and applications as well as thermodynamic cycles and solid state devices for ultra high temperature energy conversion. This book provides a comprehensive and multidisciplinary guide to engineers and researchers in a variety of fields including energy conversion, storage, cogeneration, thermodynamics, numerical methods, CSP and materials engineering. It firstly provides a review of fundamental concepts before exploring numerical methods for fluid dynamics and phase change materials before presenting more complex elements such as heat transfer, fluids, thermal insulation thermodynamic cycles and a variety of energy conversation methods including thermophotovoltaic thermionic and combined heat and power Reviews the main technologies enabling ultra high temperature energy storage and conversion including both thermodynamic cycles and solid state devices Includes the applications for ultra high temperature energy storage systems both in terrestrial and space environments Analyzes the thermophysical properties and relevant experimental and theoretical methods for the analysis of high temperature materials Advances in Chemistry Series,1967 Regenerative EMF Cells,1967 Proceedings,1963 Electrochemical Engineering Across Scales Richard C. Alkire,Philip N. Bartlett,Jacek Lipkowski,2015-02-09 In Volume XV in the series Advances in Electrochemical Science and Engineering various leading experts from the field of electrochemical engineering share their insights into how different experimental and computational methods are used in transferring molecular scale discoveries into processes and products Throughout the focus is on the engineering problem and method of solution rather than on the specific application such that scientists from different backgrounds will benefit from the flow of ideas between the various subdisciplines A must read for anyone developing engineering tools for the next generation design and control of electrochemical process technologies including chemical mechanical and electrical engineers as well as chemists physicists biochemists and materials scientists
