Contradictions of church-state partnership in education has been a historical concern for local intellectuals and international agencies. However, the focus has been exclusively the schools management while religious education was marginally explored. The current review analyzes these contradictions with reference to religious education. It is more than a century since religious education has been introduced in Lesotho by the missionaries. However, it has not changed its chief aim of evangelistic perspective. This type of religious education has been accepted as having a statutory position in the curriculum. At the same time such religious education is not taught in government schools as it is believed that it does not comply with what can be referred to as civic education. The problem is that the professional religious education teachers who teach religious education are not evangelists. It is also not by choice that students attend church schools where they are provided with proselytism religious education or the government schools where they do not receive it. The paper theoretically analyzes these contradictions and finally recommends pluralistic approach to the teaching of religious education as a means to counteract these contradictions.

Key words: Religious Education, church-state partnership, conflict of interest, autonomy-based liberalism, pluralism

INTRODUCTION

Attempts to examine the contradictions of partnership between government and church in education in Lesotho have been made by many, for example, Matseke (2000), Motaba (1998), Khutshwane (1995), Leretho (2007), The World Bank (2006) and UNESCO (2007). However, the main focus was always on the schools management. This paper takes a differing route from the common trend of focusing more on school management and administration, to analyze church-state partnership with special reference to Religious Education. The word "church" is used here to mean all Christian denominations that own schools in Lesotho.

The Western formal education in Lesotho was introduced by the missionaries in the 1850s who had a clear aim on the teaching of religion in schools which was basically evangelism. The struggle for power in education on who should control the education system in Lesotho between the church and the government began during colonial period up until after independence in the 1960s when the education system began to be legalized as a "three-legged-pot" meaning a tripartite partnership between the Christian churches, the government and the parents. However, the tripartite partnership in education that was sealed did not define the roles and responsibilities of each partner, which left the power struggle over control on education intact. In this struggle, the teaching of religious education has been at the center. The churches maintained their uncompromising stance on the original evangelistic aim of the teaching of religion in schools.

Religion in the Primary School Leslie J. Francis, 1987-01

Empirical Theology in Texts and Tables Leslie J.

Francis, Mandy Robbins, Jeff Astley, 2009 Empirical theology offers fresh and stimulating insights into the concerns of both the Church and the Academy It does this by accessing relevant empirical evidence using the tools of the social sciences and placing this evidence in the context of theological critique and contemporary debate In this pioneering collection of focused essays leading experts of empirical theology illustrate key perspectives within this rapidly expanding discipline The first section of the book explores theoretical issues underpinning the main methods of obtaining empirical data and the use of these data within theology The other two sections display the role both of qualitative studies and of the analysis of quantitative data in exploring a range of theological beliefs and religious social and educational concerns

The Concept of Religion, 2015-06-02 In The Concept of Religion Hans Schilderman edits a volume on the definition and empirical study of religion within the changing landscape of modern society Now that we can no longer assume a simple harmony between the scientific concept of religion church doctrine and practiced belief issues concerning the definition and measurement of religion are becoming crucial issues to academic institutions The contributing authors present empirical studies studying issues of lifespan and socialisation at school settings of vocation and profession at church and hospital settings and culture and nation of society at large The volume offers a beautiful sample of the empirical study of religion a conceptual and illustrative overview of the academic field for students and scholars in religion

The Science of Congregation Studies

Leslie J. Francis, David W. Lankshear, 2022-01-01 During the past two decades the Science of Congregation Studies has blossomed significantly in the UK as well as within the USA and Australia In this illuminating and thought provoking volume Leslie J Francis research group draws on the Signs of Growth Survey conducted throughout the Anglican Diocese of Southwark to illustrate how the strength of combined qualitative and quantitative research methods can draw on the insights of psychological theory sociological theory and empirical theology to illuminate pressing questions of relevance to the sociology of religion psychology of religion practical theology and pastoral studies Individual chapters discuss the missing generation of young people the greying generation aged seventy and over how occasional churchgoers express belonging and commitment connections between psychological type and religious motivation and the distinctive characteristics of growing congregations
