Haas, 1990 This is an examination of the Med Plan a largely successful and acclaimed international effort to coordinate the marine pollution control practices of the Mediterranean countries through regional treaties research and monitoring integrated policies and administrative and budgetary support The study concludes that the Plan proves that international cooperation and convergent state policies are possible and that the Plan may signal the emergence of an entirely new international political order for the environment

The Politics of International Environmental Management A. Underdal, 2012-12-06 Many of the major environmental challenges facing governments and societies today are collective problems calling for joint solutions However even when effective solutions can be found only through joint efforts international cooperation is often hard to establish and maintain This makes it all the more important to understand the conditions for success and the causes of failure This book examines some of the political mechanisms at work in the formation and operation of international environmental regimes What are the major factors that shape the national positions that governments bring to the negotiating table How do the international institutions and negotiation processes through which these preferences and positions are adjusted and aggregated affect outcomes What are the main mechanisms determining whether or not international environmental agreements are successfully implemented at the domestic level The Politics of International Environmental Management is published in cooperation with the European Science Foundation

Contesting Global Environmental Knowledge, Norms and Governance M. J. Peterson, 2019-01-08 Through theoretical discussions and case studies this volume explores how processes of contestation about knowledge norms and governance processes shape efforts to promote sustainability through international environmental governance The epistemic communities literature of the 1990s highlighted the importance of expert consensus on scientific knowledge for problem definition and solution specification in international environmental agreements This book addresses a gap in this literature insufficient attention to the multiple forms of contestation that also inform international environmental governance These forms include within discipline contestation that helps forge expert consensus interdisciplinary contestation regarding the types of expert knowledge needed for effective response to environmental problems normative and practical arguments about the proper roles of experts and laypersons and contestation over how to combine globally developed norms and scientific knowledge with locally prevalent norms and traditional knowledge in ways ensuring effective implementation of environmental policies This collection advances understanding of the conditions under which contestation facilitates or hinders the development of effective global environmental governance The contributors examine how attempts to incorporate more than one stream of expert knowledge and to include lay knowledge alongside it have played out in efforts to create and maintain multilateral agreements relating to environmental concerns It will interest scholars and graduate students of political science global governance international environmental politics and global policy making Policy analysts should also find it useful
