Disassembling and Decolonizing School in the Pacific David W. Kupferman,2012-08-11

Schooling in the region known as Micronesia is today a normalized ubiquitous and largely unexamined habit As a result many of its effects have also gone unnoticed and unchallenged By interrogating the processes of normalization and governmentality that circulate and operate through schooling in the region through the deployment of Foucaultian conceptions of power knowledge and subjectivity this work destabilizes conventional notions of schooling s neutrality self evident benefit and its role as the key to contemporary notions of so called political economic and social development This work aims to disquiet the idea that school today is both rooted in some distant past and a force for decolonization and the postcolonial moment Instead through a genealogy of schooling the author argues that school as it is currently practiced in the region is the product of the present emerging from the mid 1960s shift in US policy in the islands the very moment when the US was trying to simultaneously prepare the islands for putative self determination while producing ever increasing colonial relations through the practice of schooling The work goes on to conduct a genealogy of the various subjectivities produced through this present schooling practice notably the student the teacher and the child parent family It concludes by offering a counter discourse to the normalized narrative of schooling and suggests that what is displaced and foreclosed on by that narrative in fact holds a possible key to meaningful decolonization and self determination The Economic Impact of Alternative Financial Accounting and Reporting Models for Commercial Banks Arthur D. Little, Inc,1978

World Scientific Reference On Asia-pacific Trade Policies (In 2 Volumes) Kym Anderson,2019-12-19 Protectionism has been placed under the media spotlight with news headlines generated by populist anti globalization movements and Donald Trump s term as US President Such a policy stance is putting at risk unilateral trade reform efforts in the Asia Pacific region and elsewhere This two volume reference work provides a timely update on how far the region has come in opening markets It analyzes the motivations or ostensible objectives of policies adopted in the past the changing extent of the domestic price distortions involved the economic effects of those policies at home and abroad the political economy forces at work that brought about those policies and their subsequent reform their consequences for international trade economic welfare and poverty alleviation and prospects for sustainable improvements in current policies Case studies of major East Asian economies and Australia reveal how government priorities to assist farmers versus manufacturers changed over the past century but especially since the 1980s and how that has affected trade between natural resource poor and resource rich economies This set is highly recommended for those who are interested in the economics and politics of trade policies agricultural economics economic development and food and nutrition security in the Asia Pacific region and beyond
