and no friends and was bullied a great deal At the age of twelve he fantasized about suicide However he also daydreamed constructing elaborate imaginary worlds In 1827 his mother Frances Trollope moved to America with Trollope s three younger siblings to Nashoba Commune After that failed she opened a bazaar in Cincinnati which proved unsuccessful Thomas Trollope joined them for a short time before returning to the farm at Harrow but Anthony stayed in England throughout His mother returned in 1831 and rapidly made a name for herself as a writer soon earning a good income His father s affairs however went from bad to worse He gave up his legal practice entirely and failed to make enough income from farming to pay rents to his landlord Lord Northwick In 1834 he fled to Belgium to avoid arrest for debt The whole family moved to a house near Bruges where they lived entirely on Frances s earnings In Belgium Anthony was offered a commission in an Austrian cavalry regiment To accept it he needed to learn French and German he had a year in which to acquire these languages To learn them without expense to himself and his family he took a position as an usher in a school in Brussels which position made him the tutor of thirty boys After six weeks of this however he received an offer of a clerkship in the General Post Office obtained through a family friend He returned to London in the autumn of 1834 to take up this post

Lotta Schmidt Anthony Trollope, 2017 Lotta Schmidt; and Other Tales Anthony Trollope, 2013-09 This historic book may have numerous typos and missing text Purchasers can usually download a free scanned copy of the original book without typos from the publisher Not indexed Not illustrated 1873 edition Excerpt MALACHI S COVE N the northern coast of Cornwall between Tintagel and Bossiney down to the very margin of the sea there lived not long since an old man who got his living by saving seaweed from the waves and selling it for manure The cliffs there are bold and fine and the sea beats in upon them from the north with a grand violence I doubt whether it be not the finest morsel of cliff scenery in England though it is beaten by many portions of the west coast of Ireland and perhaps also by spots in Wales and Scotland Cliffs should be nearly precipitous they should be broken in their outlines and should barely admit here and there of an insecure passage from the summit of the sand at their feet The sea should come if not up to them at least very near to them and then above all things the water below them should be blue and not of that dead leaden colour which is so familiar to us in England At Tintagel all these requisites are there except that bright blue colour which is so lovely But the cliffs themselves are bold and well broken and the margin of sand at high water is very narrow so narrow that at spring tides there is barely a footing there Close upon this margin was the cottage or hovel of Malachi Trenglos the old man of whom I have spoken But Malachi or old Glos as he was commonly called by the people around him had not built his house absolutely upon the sand There was a fissure in the rock so great that at the top it formed a narrow ravine and so complete from the summit to the base that it afforded an opening for a steep and rugged track from the top of the rock to the bottom This fissure was so wide at the bottom that it had afforded space for Trenglos to fix his habitation on a foundation of rock LOTTA SCHMIDT and OTHER STORIES by ANTHONY TROLLOPE, LARGE PRINT Anthony Trollope, 2017-04-22 The Viennese girls are almost always attractive in their appearance without often coming up to our English ideas of prettiness. Sometimes they do fully come up to our English idea of beauty. They are generally dark, tall, light in figure with bright eyes which are however very unlike the bright eyes of Italy and which constantly remind the traveller that his feet are carrying him eastward in Europe. But perhaps the peculiar characteristic in their faces which most strikes a stranger is a certain look of almost fierce independence as though they had recognised the necessity and also acquired the power of standing alone and of protecting themselves. I know no young women by whom the assistance of a man's arm seems to be so seldom required as the young women of Vienna. They almost invariably dress well generally preferring black or colours that are very dark and they wear hats that are I believe of Hungarian origin very graceful in form but which are peculiarly calculated to add something to that assumed savageness of independence of which I have spoken. Both the girls who were walking in the Burgplatz were of the kind that I have attempted to describe. Marie Weber was older and not so tall and less attractive than her friend but as her position in life was fixed and as she was engaged to marry a cutter of diamonds I will not endeavour to interest the reader specially in her personal appearance. Lotta Schmidt was essentially a Viennese pretty girl of the special Viennese type. She was tall and slender but still had none of that appearance of feminine weakness which is so common among us with girls who are tall and slim. She walked as though she had plenty both of strength and courage for all purposes of life without the assistance of any extraneous aid. Her hair was jet black and very plentiful and was worn in long curls which were brought round from the back of her head over her shoulders. Her eyes were blue, dark blue and were clear and deep rather than bright. Her nose was well formed but somewhat prominent and made you think at the first glance of the tribes of Israel. But yet no observer of the physiognomy of races would believe for half a moment that Lotta Schmidt was a Jewess. Indeed the type of form which I am endeavouring to describe is in truth as far removed from the Jewish type as it is from the Italian and it has no connexion whatever with that which we ordinarily conceive to be the German type. But overriding everything in her personal appearance in her form, countenance and gait was that singular fierceness of independence as though she were constantly asserting that she would never submit herself to the inconvenience of feminine softness. And yet Lotta Schmidt was a simple girl with a girl's heart looking forward to find all that she was to have of human happiness in the love of some man and expecting and hoping to do her duty as a married woman and the mother of a family. Nor would she have been at all coy in saying as much had the subject of her life's prospects become matter of conversation in any company no more than one lad would be coy in saying that he hoped to be a doctor or another in declaring a wish for the army. When the two girls had walked twice round the hoarding within which stood all those tons of bronze which were intended to represent Prince Eugene they crossed over the centre of the Burgplatz passed under the other equestrian statue and came to the gate leading into the Volksgarten. There just at the entrance they were overtaken by a man with a fiddle case under his arm who raised his hat to them and then shook hands with both of them. Ladies he said are you coming in to hear a little music? We will do our best Herr Crippel always does well said Marie Weber There is never any doubt when one comes to hear him Marie why do you flatter him said Lotta I do not say half to his face that you said just now behind his back said Marie Index to Short Stories ,1929 Index to Short Stories--Supplement Ina Ten Eyck Firkins,1929 Ralph the Heir Anthony
