Nutritional Anthropology Contemporary Approaches To Diet And Culture:

Nutritional Anthropology Norge W. Jerome, Randy F. Kandel, Gretel H. Pelto, American Anthropological Association, 1980 Abstract Nutritional states result from both biological and cultural forces The consideration of nutritional problems from a biocultural perspective comprises the field of nutritional anthropology Eleven papers are presented representing the efforts of researchers who have examined nutrition in this social context Their theoretical approach combines the nutritional and social sciences in investigations of the sociocultural cognitive and ecological aspects of food The methodology of nutritional anthropology is applied in a study of women s roles in rural Africa Human dietary adaptations in the evolution of human culture are investigated in a case study of 2 prehistoric populations The food patterns of a contemporary group demonstrates nutritional adaptation and cultural maladaptation Demographic effects of sex specific diets and nutritional correlates of economic microdifferentiation are examined Other topics deal with malnutrition diet and acculturation and health food movement Human Diet and Nutrition in Biocultural Perspective Tina Moffat, Tracy Prowse, 2010-12-01 There are not many areas that are more rooted in both the biological and social cultural aspects of humankind than diet and nutrition Throughout human history nutrition has been shaped by political economic and cultural forces and in turn access to food and nutrition has altered the course and direction of human societies Using a biocultural approach the contributors to this volume investigate the ways in which food is both an essential resource fundamental to human health and an expression of human culture and society The chapters deal with aspects of diet and human nutrition through space and time and span prehistoric historic and contemporary societies spread over various geographical regions including Europe North America Africa and Asia to highlight how biology and culture are inextricably linked Research Methods for Anthropological Studies of Food and Nutrition Janet Chrzan, John Brett, 2017-02-01 The dramatic increase in all things food in popular and academic fields during the last two decades has generated a diverse and dynamic set of approaches for understanding the complex relationships and interactions that determine how people eat and how diet affects culture These volumes offer a comprehensive reference for students and established scholars interested in food and nutrition research in Nutritional and Biological Anthropology Archaeology Socio Cultural and Linguistic Anthropology Food Studies and Applied Public Health Routledge International Handbook of Food Studies Ken Albala, 2013-05-07 Over the past decade there has been a remarkable flowering of interest in food and nutrition both within the popular media and in academia Scholars are increasingly using foodways food systems and eating habits as a new unit of analysis within their own disciplines and students are rushing into classes and formal degree programs focused on food Introduced by the editor and including original articles by over thirty leading food scholars from around the world the Routledge International Handbook of Food Studies offers students scholars and all those interested in food related research a one stop easy to use reference guide Each article includes a brief history of food research within a discipline or on a particular topic a discussion of research methodologies and ideological or theoretical positions resources for research including archives grants and fellowship opportunities as well as suggestions for further study Each entry also explains the logistics of succeeding as a student and professional in food studies This clear direct Handbook will appeal to those hoping to start a career in academic food studies as well as those hoping to shift their research to a food related project Strongly interdisciplinary this work will be of interest to students and scholars throughout the social sciences and humanities

Decolonizing the Diet Gideon Mailer, Nicola Hale, 2018-03-22 Decolonizing the Diet challenges the common claim that Native American communities were decimated after 1492 because they lived in Virgin Soils that were biologically distinct from those in the Old World Comparing the European transition from Paleolithic hunting and gathering with Native American subsistence strategies before and after 1492 the book offers a new way of understanding the link between biology ecology and history Synthesizing the latest work in the science of nutrition immunity and evolutionary genetics with cutting edge scholarship on the history of indigenous North America Decolonizing the Diet highlights a fundamental model of human demographic destruction human populations have been able to recover from mass epidemics within a century whatever their genetic heritage They fail to recover from epidemics when their ability to hunt gather and farm nutritionally dense plants and animals is diminished by war colonization and cultural destruction The history of Native America before and after 1492

clearly shows that biological immunity is contingent on historical context not least in relation to the protection or destruction of long evolved nutritional building blocks that underlie human immunity

Understanding Economic Behaviour Klaus Günter Grunert, Folke Ölander, 2012-12-06 may be related to another basic assumption in economic psychology that the human capacity to process information from the environment is limited and that the kind of optimal use of that information postulated in many economic theories is therefore not possible The research methods used are mainly geared towards empirical research and there mostly towards survey research and experimentation Experimentation involves most often simulated behaviour in a laboratory which allows the experimental manipulation of possible causes of behaviour which would not be possible in real life Survey research is the most widely used instrument for investigating real world behaviour with all its caveats about establishing causal explanations Several introductory books e g Fumham Lea Tarpy van Raaij van Veldhoven Wiswede 1988 have appeared recently which try to give an overview of the field of economic psychology and which in varying degrees demonstrate the three foundations of economic psychology just mentioned Others have concentrated on certain subtopics such as the psychology of the labour market e g Baxter 1988 Pelzmann 1986

The Psychology of Nutrition David Booth, 2016-05-06 This title explores the psychological processes involved in the selection and consumption of foods and drink The exposition is firmly linked to research evidence on the cognitive socio economic and physiological influences on the desire to eat and drink The basic theory is that appetite is a learned response to a recognized complex of cues from foods the body and the social and physical environment The volume starts with infant care giver interactions in feeding then moves on to consider how physical and social maturation in Western culture affects attitudes to foods concentrating on the phenomena of ordinary dieting and the extremes of disordered eating The concluding chapters deal with the process within the lives of individual consumers which causes the same eating habits to form in different segments of society It also looks at food technology marketing and governmental regulation The Psychology of Nutrition tackles questions about what goes on in eaters and drinkers minds about the foods and beverages they are consuming and about the cultural meaning of the eating occasion in industrialized cultures
