discusses and expands upon Hubbard's article breaking down the techniques Ron used to create a story from a simple object. Card also explores the history of memorable speculative fiction and what makes it great. The Rewards of Imagination by Craig Elliott. In addition to his fine art work, Craig has had a hand in designing many of today's most popular animated films. Here Craig expounds on the value and need for creative artists and their impact on our society. Conversations Regie Routman, 2000. In this long-awaited volume, Regie Routman continues the discussion she began in the best-selling Invitations and further explores the full universe of an effective language arts and literacy program across the curriculum. Using Young Adult Literature in the English Classroom John H. Bushman, Kay Parks Haas, 2001. This practical methods book provides future and inservice middle and high school English teachers with the direction they'll need to choose reading selections and to develop ideas for teaching them. Using a highly effective conversational tone, it provides the latest information about young adult literature in a short, concisely written format. The authors show the busy English teacher how to accomplish four important goals that address life-long reading, reader response, teaching the classics, and reaching a diverse student population. Covers diversity in young adult literature with a strong emphasis on the relationship between reading, writing, and language skills. Presents a variety of curricular patterns to illustrate ways to organize literature lessons in a variety of settings. Discusses theories of Piaget, Havighurst, Kohlberg, and Carlsen, and literary examples that use these theoretical frameworks. This book is a current resource for those who are studying young adult literature. Our Stories, Ourselves Mev Miller, Kathleen P. King, 2011-11-01. Women's lives are often written on our bodies. Yet very little is made of the impacts of embodiment for women in literacy education, both learners and professionals. This volume presents the writings of 26 contributors: teachers, students, and administrators who examine the rich terrain of personal and professional experiences related to whole-person engagement in learning and teaching. These writings provide a compass to guide readers through the bodily landscapes: mindful flights, willful spirits, and emotional embraces. Written with the same desire to open minds, hearts, and practices to new understanding, this book builds on the successful style of Empowering Women through Literacy (2009). This new volume appeals to all readers as the essays, poems, and investigations woven through its pages challenge us to consider the embodiment of women's learning. Join us on the journey as we travel across many arenas and discover significant ways to comprehend and support best practices in teaching and learning, especially for women.
