Kurke, Ellen M. Scrivner, 2013-04-15 As we approach the 21st century there is a discernable shift in policing from an incident driven perspective to a proactive problem solving stance often described as community policing In this volume a panel of 21 psychologists examine the changing directions in policing and how such changes impact on psychological service delivery and operational support to law enforcement agencies The book describes existing and emerging means of providing psychological support to the law enforcement community in response to police needs to accommodate new technology community oriented problem solving technology crime prevention and sensitivity to community social changes Senior psychologists who are sworn officers federal agents and civilian employees of federal state and local law enforcement agencies comprise the team of chapter authors Their perspectives encompass their collective experience in the trenches and in law enforcement management and administrative support roles They discuss traditional applications of psychology to police selection training and promotion processes and in trauma stress management and evaluation of fitness for duty

Concerns related to police diversity and police family issues are also addressed as are unique aspects of police stress management. Additional chapters are dedicated to establishing psychological service functions that currently are less familiar to police agencies than they are to other government and private sector service recipients. These chapters are devoted to police psychologists as human resource professionals as human factors experts in accommodating to new technology and to new legal requirements as organizational behavioral experts and as strategic planners. This text is recommended reading for two groups: police and public safety administrators whose work takes them or should take them into contact with police psychologists practicing and would be police psychologists concerned with the emerging trends in the application of psychology to police and other public safety programs. Psychological Services for Law Enforcement Theodore H. Blau, 1994-03-16

In 1989 the Commission on Accreditation for Law Enforcement Agencies mandated that every police authority seeking accreditation with the Commission must have access to psychological support and consultation. This timely text offers an extensive and current overview of the services psychologists can offer to law enforcement. Organized under major subject areas: assessment, intervention, consultation, and training, it deals with such issues as officer recruit selection, fitness for duty evaluations, stress counseling, hostage negotiation, investigative hypnosis, psychological profiling, management consultations, and much more. The Psychology of Police: Deadly Force Encounters Laurence Miller, 2020-02-11

The Psychology of Police: Deadly Force Encounters Science Practice and Police is a fascinating look into the reality of police work. The author integrates noted theories into a street-wise understanding of being a police officer. The focus of this book is on the use of deadly force by officers, a topic of considerable importance. The author discusses the psychosocial aspects of deadly force use stemming from the individual officer, the situation, organizational influences, and the police culture. Expanding further into social issues, the controversial topic of race and use of deadly force is discussed. This depiction looks at both sides: that of racial victimization and that of the police, which helps to provide a rather unique perspective on this important issue. Of interest, the author breaks down the different dimensions of cognition as a factor in decision making among police, including the perception of the situation, the action taken depending on that perception, and the role of present and past memory. This will make for a useful training topic to alert officers to the cognitive processes that go into deadly force use, processes that they have the control to change to make a better decision. Next, the book delves into the biological factors that may be involved in police decision making again where deadly force is involved. The various negative psychological impacts that a deadly force situation may bring about are identified and explained. This book will be useful as a tool for both law enforcement practitioners and researchers to better understand the intricacies of deadly force by the police. For researchers, the book has a multitude of references available for further exploration. It will prove to be a useful guide and reference volume for police managers and supervisors, mental health clinicians, investigators, attorneys, judges, law enforcement educators, and trainers, rank and file police officers, including expert witnesses. Personality Assessment in Police

Psychology Peter A. Weiss, 2010 In recent years personality assessment by professional psychologists has taken on an increasingly important role in the field of police work Most importantly personality assessment instruments have been utilized in the pre employment psychological screening of police officer candidates This psychological screening takes place at the end of the hiring process to ensure that candidates do not have personality characteristics or existing psychopathology that would interfere with their job performance Personality assessment is also used for other applications in police psychology These applications include fitness for duty evaluations FFDEs and second opinion evaluations of officers who challenge hiring decisions Moreover police psychologists are involved in a considerable amount of research in order to determine which tests and scales are most appropriate for evaluations The present volume is divided into four parts to cover the relevant issues in personality assessment for police work Part I provides an introduction and the basic principles of personality assessment in police psychology Part II focuses on the major assessment instruments used in police psychology These include the MMPI 2 the Personality Assessment Inventory PAI the Inwald Personality Inventory IPI and Hilson Tests the M PULSE Inventory pre offer integrity instruments and the Rorschach Comprehensive System Part III examines multiple issues in personality assessment research in the field of police psychology Part IV covers applications of personality assessment in police psychology These applications include pre employment evaluations fitness for duty evaluations conditional second opinion psychological evaluations of candidates using multiple sources of information when conducting mandatory or required evaluations and the politics of personality assessment in police agencies This unique and comprehensive text is designed for psychologists who are actively working in the field of law enforcement including psychologists in both applied and research academic settings Modern Police Psychology James Thomas Chandler, 1990

Psychology for Law Enforcement Edward J. Green, Police Selection and Training J.C. Yuille, 1986-06-30 The New Police Officer During the past twenty years the tasks required of police officers have expanded and changed with dramatic rapidity The traditional roles of the police had been those of law enforcement and the maintenance of public order As a consequence police officers were typically large bodied males selected for their physical abilities and trained to accept orders and enforce the law Over the past two decades however the industrialized nations have placed a variety of new demands on police officers To traditional law enforcement and public order tasks have been added social work mental health duties and community relations work For example domestic disputes violence between husbands and wives lovers relatives etc have increased in frequency and severity or at least there has been a dramatic increase in reporting the occurrence of domestic violence Our societies have no formal system to deal with domestic disputes and the responsibility to do so in most countries has fallen to the police In fact in some areas as many as 60% of calls for service to the police are related to domestic disputes see the chapter in this text by Dutton As a result the police officer has had to become a skilled social worker able to intervene with sensitivity in domestic situations Alternatively in the case of West Germany the officer has had to learn to work co operatively with social workers see the chapter by Steinhilper
