Shaping Tradition Sandra Fehll Tropp,1992-01 Shaping Tradition Sandra F. Tropp,1992 Encyclopedia of the Essay Tracy Chevalier,2012-10-12 This groundbreaking new source of international scope defines the essay as nonfictional prose texts of between one and 50 pages in length The more than 500 entries by 275 contributors include entries on nationalities various categories of essays such as generic such as sermons aphorisms individual major works notable writers and periodicals that created a market for essays and particularly famous or significant essays The preface details the historical development of the essay and the alphabetically arranged entries usually include biographical sketch nationality era selected writings list additional readings and anthologies The Illusion of Will, Self, and Time Jonathan Bricklin,2015-06-01 Discusses how William James s work suggests a world without will self or time and how research supports this perspective William James is often considered a scientist compromised by his advocacy of mysticism and parapsychology Jonathan Bricklin argues James can also be viewed as a mystic compromised by his commitment to common sense James wanted to believe in will self and time but his deepest insights suggested otherwise Is consciousness already there waiting to be uncovered and is it a veridical revelation of reality James asked shortly before his death in 1910 A century after his death research from neuroscience physics psychology and parapsychology is making the case both theoretically and experimentally that answers James s question in the affirmative By separating what James passionately wanted to believe based on common sense from what his insights and researches led him to believe Bricklin shows how James himself laid the groundwork for this more challenging view of existence The non reality of will self and time is consistent with James s psychology of volition his epistemology of self and his belief that Newtonian objective even flowing time does not exist A Rhetoric of Reflection Kathleen Yancey,2016-08-15 Reflection in writing studies is now entering a third generation Dating from the 1970s the first generation of reflection focused on identifying and describing internal cognitive processes assumed to be part of composing The second generation operating in both classroom and assessment scenes in the 1990s developed mechanisms for externalizing reflection making it visible and thus explicitly available to help writers Now a third generation of work in reflection is emerging As mapped by the contributors to A Rhetoric of Reflection this iteration of research and practice is taking up new questions in new sites of activity and with new theories It comprises attention to transfer of writing knowledge and practice teaching and assessment portfolios linguistic and cultural difference and various media including print and digital It conceptualizes conversation as a primary reflective medium both inside and outside the classroom and for individuals and collectives and articulates the role that different genres play in hosting reflection Perhaps most important in the work of this third generation is the identification and increasing appreciation of the epistemic value of reflection of its ability to help make new meanings and of its rhetorical power for both scholars and students Contributors Anne Beaufort Kara Taczak Liane Robertson Michael Neal Heather Ostman Cathy Leaker Bruce Horner Asao B Inoue Tyler Richmond J
