Empires Come, Empires Go Sidney Owitz,2021-01-21 This is a panorama involving strong men who lead their countries in order to achieve power and conquer territory supposedly to last forever Their dreams have sent them far and wide in order to spread their influence and fame They are driven by ego brutality a desire for wealth and a lust for being idolized Numerous lives have needlessly been lost and mass destruction has occurred but their dreams generally have been eroded or short lived None of the empires of yesterday exist any longer Nuclear Country Catherine McNicol Stock,2020-09-18

Militarization and nuclearization were the historical developments most essential to the creation of the rural New Right Both North Dakota and South Dakota have long been among the most reliably Republican states in the nation in the past century voters have only chosen two Democrats Franklin Roosevelt and Lyndon B Johnson and in 2016 both states preferred Donald Trump by over thirty points Yet in the decades before World War II the people of the Northern Plains were not universally politically conservative Instead many Dakotans including Republicans supported experiments in agrarian democracy that incorporated ideas from populism and progressivism to socialism and communism and fought against bigness in all its forms including bonanza farms out of state railroads corporations banks corrupt political parties and distant federal bureaucracies but also surprisingly the culture of militarism and the expansion of American military power abroad In Nuclear Country Catherine McNicol Stock explores the question of why between 1968 and 1992 most voters in the Dakotas abandoned their distinctive ideological heritage and came to embrace the conservatism of the New Right Stock focuses on how this transformation coincided with the coming of the military and national security states to the countryside via the placement of military bases and nuclear missile silos on the Northern Plains This militarization influenced regional political culture by reinforcing or re contextualizing long standing local ideas and practices particularly when the people of the plains found that they shared culturally conservative values with the military After adopting the first two planks of the New Right national defense and conservative social ideas Dakotans endorsed the third plank of New Right ideology fiscal conservatism Ultimately Stock contends that militarization and nuclearization were the historical developments most essential to the creation of the rural New Right throughout the United States and that their impact can best be seen in this often overlooked region s history

Superpower Britain Ashley Jackson, Andrew Stewart, 2025-01-13 History tells us that the Second World War broke Britain as a great power diminishing its military strength ruining its economy and precipitating a striking wave of decolonization Nationalists and new superpowers dominated the post war landscape and the country was on the slide But no one knew this in 1945 the leading politicians the top civil servants and the most knowledgeable experts all expected the British Empire to remain intact long into the future There was no hint of imminent collapse and the governing elite and key opinion shapers weren t considering decline and decolonization evincing instead a new zeal for imperial renovation and a belief that an empire which had just survived another global conflict was vital for the peace and security of all humankind They were even looking to expansion securing the spoils of victory as they had done at the end of the First World War Fully expecting to continue leading a great empire as well as a bloc of European nations recovering from war the British had their own vision of the new world order Furthermore and astonishingly given what actually happened British leaders were convinced that parity could be gained with the Americans and the Soviets Britain was to remain a superpower in its own right What actually happened differed radically from these expectations The question is how do we account for the difference between what it was thought would happen and the actual course of events Superpower Britain is the first book to focus in depth on this fascinating counterpoint and to fully integrate the history of Britain and the effects of the Second World War with the history of the British Empire It explains what the British planned to do in the post war world why they thought their plans for regeneration and the future world order were viable and what the war had actually done to British world power and its imperial foundations

The United States of War David Vine,2020-10-13 The United States has been fighting wars constantly since invading Afghanistan in 2001 This nonstop warfare is far less exceptional than it might seem the United States has been at war or has invaded other countries almost every year since independence In The United States of War David Vine traces this pattern of bloody conflict from Columbus s 1494 arrival in Guantanamo Bay through the 250 year expansion of a global US empire Drawing on historical and firsthand anthropological research in fourteen countries and territories The United States of War demonstrates how US leaders across generations have locked the United States in a self perpetuating system of permanent war by constructing the world s largest ever collection of foreign military bases a global matrix that has made offensive interventionist wars more likely Beyond exposing the profit making desires political interests racism and toxic masculinity underlying the country s relationship to war and empire The United States of War shows how the long history of U S military expansion shapes our daily lives from today s multi trillion dollar wars to the pervasiveness of violence and militarism in everyday U S life The book concludes by confronting the catastrophic toll of American wars which have left millions dead wounded and displaced while offering proposals for how we can end the fighting
