Psychology Of Emotion:

The Psychology of Emotions Carroll E. Izard, 1991-10-31 Emotions are a part of personality and essential to all human relationships but how well do we understand what they really are What are the processes by which they occur and influence us How do they affect the way we perceive and interact with the world In The Psychology of Emotions author Carroll E Izard provides a timely overview that focuses on the relevance of emotions to our daily lives as he addresses these and other fundamental questions on the activation expression experience and functions of emotions Psychology of Emotion Paula

M. Niedenthal, François Ric, 2017-04-20 This textbook is designed for upper level courses on affective science The lively integrative chapters review empirical research on emotion at every level of analysis including the neural bases of emotions complex emotions emotion and cognitive processes emotion regulation and an examination of social levels of analysis including emotions in groups gender and cultural differences This 2nd edition has greater inclusion of research findings from neuroscience and includes highly effective learning devices such as Development Detail boxes bolded key terms Learning Links to online supplemental materials and many tables figures and illustrations that make topics come alive The Psychology of Emotion K. T. Strongman, 2003-11-21 The multi disciplinary approach taken should appeal to those investigating emotion in the fields of philosophy and the social sciences as well as to psychology students and lecturers Those studying or teaching emotion should find this book a valuable resource The Psychology of Emotion K. T.

Strongman, 1996-09-12 The Psychology of Emotion commences with a discussion of the nature of theory and its appraisal This is both in general and also in the field of emotion in particular Theories of emotion are categorized and then considered from several bases These include experience behaviour physiology cognition specific emotions development social clinical individual differences philosophy sociology anthropology culture linguistics and history Themes are abstracted including for example biology gender social constructionism and post modernism The author presents these theoretical issues encompassing most current emotion theories including some of the past and extends the issues further than the field of psychology He goes on to make authoritative judgements about the relative merits of the theories and finally extracts whatever common themes there might be The Laws of Emotion Nico H. Frijda, 2017-09-25

The Laws of Emotion is an accessible work that reviews much of the insightful new research on emotions conducted over the last ten years It expands on the theory of emotions introduced in Nico Frijda's earlier work and addresses a number of unanswered basic problems on emotion theory The author's goal is to better understand the underlying psychological mechanisms of emotion In this book Professor Frijda also examines previously neglected topics of emotion such as determinants of emotional intensity the duration of emotions and sexual emotions It touches on both evolutionary and neuroscientific explanations The book begins by reviewing a number of principles governing emotion or the laws of emotion The author then examines the passionate nature of emotions and the motivational processes underlying them and the nature and causes of pleasure and pain Professor

Frijda then explores the processes that lead to emotional arousal including cognitive influences and why people care more about certain things than others Emotional intensity is then discussed including the often neglected topic of the course of emotions over time The book concludes with the author's insights into complex emotional domains such as sex revenge and the need to commemorate past events The Laws of Emotion will appeal to social cognitive and developmental psychologists social scientists philosophers and neuroscientists as well as anyone interested in the workings of the mind It also serves as a text for advanced courses in the psychology of emotions or the neuroscience of emotions Psychology of Emotion John G. Carlson, Elaine Hatfield, 1992 The Psychological Construction of Emotion Lisa Feldman Barrett, James A. Russell, 2014-10-29

This volume presents cutting edge theory and research on emotions as constructed events rather than fixed essential entities It provides a thorough introduction to the assumptions hypotheses and scientific methods that embody psychological constructionist approaches Leading scholars examine the neurobiological cognitive perceptual and social processes that give rise to the experiences Western cultures call sadness anger fear and so on The book explores such compelling questions as how the brain creates emotional experiences whether the ingredients of emotions also give rise to other mental states and how to define what is or is not an emotion Introductory and concluding chapters by the editors identify key themes and controversies and compare psychological construction to other theories of emotion The Feeling Brain Elizabeth Johnston, Leah Olson, 2015-05-12 A reader friendly exploration of the science of emotion After years of neglect by both mainstream biology and psychology the study of emotions has emerged as a central topic of scientific inquiry in the vibrant new discipline of affective neuroscience Elizabeth Johnston and Leah Olson trace how work in this rapidly expanding field speaks to fundamental questions about the nature of emotion What is the function of emotions What is the role of the body in emotions What are feelings and how do they relate to emotions Why are emotions so difficult to control Is there an emotional brain The authors tackle these questions and more in this tasting menu of cutting edge emotion research They build their story around the path breaking 19th century works of biologist Charles Darwin and psychologist and philosopher William James James's 1884 article What Is an Emotion continues to guide contemporary debate about minds brains and emotions while Darwin's treatise on The Expression of Emotions in Animals and Humans squarely located the study of emotions as a critical concern in biology Throughout their study Johnston and Olson focus on the key scientists whose work has shaped the field zeroing in on the most brilliant threads in the emerging tapestry of affective neuroscience Beginning with early work on the brain substrates of emotion by such workers such as James Papez and Paul MacLean who helped define an emotional brain they then examine the role of emotion in higher brain functions such as cognition and decision making They then investigate the complex interrelations of emotion and pleasure introducing along the way the work of major researchers such as Antonio Damasio and Joseph LeDoux In doing so they braid diverse strands of inquiry into a lucid and concise introduction to this burgeoning field and begin to answer some of the most compelling questions in the field today How does the science of normal emotion inform our understanding of emotional disorders To what extent can we regulate our emotions When can we trust our emotions and when might they lead us astray How do emotions affect our memories and vice versa How can we best describe the relationship between emotion and cognition Johnston and Olson lay out the most salient questions of contemporary affective neuroscience in this study expertly situating them in their biological psychological and philosophical contexts They offer a compelling vision of an increasingly exciting and ambitious field for mental health professionals and the interested lay audience as well as for undergraduate and graduate students

The Psychology of Emotion, Morbid and Normal John Thompson MacCurdy, 1925 The Psychology of the Emotions

Théodule Ribot, 1897 Emotion James Hillman, 1992 As James Hillman writes in his new preface to this sweeping study he intends nothing less than to vitalize a standard topic of academic psychology by making the theory of emotion as crucial as is emotion itself in our lives Hillman offers an informative and readable survey of a range of theories of emotion focusing on the twentieth century but moving also from Greek thought to early Christianity to nineteenth century German physiology The work challenges readers to rethink our concepts and thereby to re-experience emotional phenomena

The Psychology of Emotion K. T. Strongman, 1973 Psychology of Emotion Paula M. Niedenthal, Silvia Krauth-Gruber, François Ric, 2006

This textbook discusses fundamental issues in the definition and measurement of emotion including conscious and unconscious processes the ways in which emotions arise in and are constrained by social situations and social processes the regulation and sharing of emotion and their effects of mental health and the manner in which culture including subculture shapes or moderates some of these processes The book also focuses on the component processes of emotion their functions and the ways in which these interact with the social environment Rather than deny either that emotions are biologically determined or that they are culturally created or shaped both biology and social situation are treated as important forces in the elicitation and the experience of emotion Each section of the book is structured around specific approaches or models and the precise questions that they were constructed to address The theories and models are also placed in their historical context Discussion of the different approaches is elaborated by summaries of the extant scientific evidence as well as examples of specific experiments or studies that were designed to evaluate the question Timely engaging real world examples are used from a variety of international contexts The pedagogic features including concise introductions and summaries discussion questions and suggested readings have been incorporated into the volume making this an ideal text for a course of Emotion which can be found as an option within many social psychology and cognitive psychology courses

Conceptions of Emotion J.A. Russell, José-Miguel Fernández-Dols, Anthony S.R. Manstead, Jane C. Wellenkamp, 1995-05-31

In Everyday Conceptions of Emotion prominent anthropologists linguists and psychologists come together for the first time to discuss how emotions are conceptualised by people of different cultures and ages speaking different languages Anger fear jealousy and emotion itself are concepts that are bound up with the English language embedded in a way of thinking acting and speaking At the same time the metaphors underlying such concepts are often similar across languages and children of different cultures follow common developmental pathways The book thus discusses the interplay of social and cultural factors that humans share in their development of an understanding of the affective side of their lives For researchers interested in emotion development of concepts and language cultural and linguistic influences on psychological processes The Science of Emotion Randolph R. Cornelius, 1996 This text provides a description of both classic and contemporary theory and research on emotions within each of the four major theoretical traditions that have shaped and continue to shape how psychologists think about emotions Written in an informal style it explains how each perspective defines constructs theories about and conducts research on emotion and presents four often very different pictures of what emotions are thought to be

The Psychology of Emotions, Feelings and Thoughts Mark Pettinelli, 2008 This book is online for free at cnx.org content col10729 This book makes the statement that thought action and feeling can occur in any order it also puts forth the idea that life is divided into three groups emotion thinking and feeling These three groups make humans feel in certain ways thinking physical stimulus and emotion all contribute to feeling But what is the difference between a thought an emotion and a feeling Is there an overlap between the three Probably since any emotion can be broken down into the sensations and real events that caused it and these events all lead to emotions feelings and thoughts So emotions feelings and thoughts all might have the same source they are just expressed differently in the mind Where do your emotions feelings and thoughts rate on a scale of clarity Where do they rate on a scale of focus and attention How does understanding the psychology of ones emotions feelings and thoughts lead to a long term increased consciousness
