Albania's Mountain Queen Marcus Tanner,2014-04-21 Whilst young ladies in the Victorian and Edwardian eras were expected to have many creative accomplishments they were not expected to travel unaccompanied and certainly not to the remote corners of Southeast Europe then part of the crumbling Ottoman Empire But Edith Durham was no ordinary lady In 1900 at the age of 37 Durham set sail for the Balkans for the first time Her trip was intended as a means of recovering from a period of ill health and as a break from the stifling monotony of caring for her ailing mother Her experiences on this trip were to change the course of her life kindling a profound love for the region which saw her return frequently in the following decades She became a confidante of the King of Montenegro ran a hospital in Macedonia and following the outbreak of the First Balkan War in 1912 became one of the world s first female war correspondents Back in England she was renowned as an expert on the region writing the highly successful book High Albania and along with other aficionados such as the MP Aubrey Herbert becoming an advocate for the people of the Balkans in British political life and society King Zog of Albania once said that before Durham visited the Balkans Albania was but a geographical expression By the time she left he added her championship of his compatriots desire for freedom had helped add a new state to the map Durham was tremendously popular in the region itself earning her the affectionate title Queen of the Mountains and an enduring legacy which continues unabated until this day Yet she has been all but forgotten in the country of her birth Marcus Tanner here tells the fascinating story of Durham s relationship with the Balkans painting a vivid portrait of a remarkable and sometimes formidable woman who was several decades ahead of her time
