Carrying prey, such as small birds, is difficult in the dense foliage of the rainforest canopy. But the maniocoussinia, a type of hawk, has a unique adaptation: long, thin, and flexible wings that allow it to maneuver in the forest's chaotic structure rapidly.

RED-BELLIED FRUIT CROW

There is such a variety of birds to explore in the rainforest that many species have evolved to become specialists of habitats. It is not unusual for the birds that inhabit the rain, or the birds that inhabit the forest, to have different diets.

RAINFOREST UPPER CANOPY

This is the place where both plants and animals enjoy the most sunlight. There is so much competition between the plants that the canopy is usually a solid layer of greenery, allowing little light to penetrate below. Where there are small openings, there are also larger ones that prey on them, so the canopy is a busy layer of the Amazon rainforest.

▲ Swifts nesting through the canopy.

WHITE-COLLARED SWIFT

Swifts are an important source of food for many predators in the rainforest. Swifts spend most of their lives flying, almost constantly flying around. They seldom land, and when they do, they are usually in the canopy. They are very fast, and they are very agile. They are also very noisy, and they are very social. They are often found in large groups, and they are often found in the canopy.

KING VULTURE

In open country, vultures tend to be very noisy. In the rainforest, however, they are very quiet. They are very large, and they are very powerful. They are also very intelligent, and they are very social. They are often found in large groups, and they are often found in the canopy.

▲ The king vulture has a body length of about 100 cm (39 in) and a wingspan of about 150 cm (59 in).

SCOUTER, MONKEY

Scouters are the most common of the monkeys in the rainforest. They are very large, and they are very powerful. They are also very intelligent, and they are very social. They are often found in large groups, and they are often found in the canopy.

CAPUCHIN MONKEY

Capuchin monkeys are very common in the rainforest. They are very large, and they are very powerful. They are also very intelligent, and they are very social. They are often found in large groups, and they are often found in the canopy.

The Distance Learning Funding Sourcebook Arlene Krebs, 1996

Yuga Marty Glass, 2001

YUGA describes five falls: the Fall into Time, the Reign of Quantity, the Mutation into Machinery, the End of Nature, and the Prison of Unreality. Taken together, these comprise the fate of historical humanity, and the author is convinced one way trips. And the urban industrial, vehicular, commercial, technological, pharmaceutical, electronic, information, spectator, secular society they have produced has ripped the human world to shreds. The book is hard hitting, but readers who find it disturbing overlook the invincible beatitude that undergirds its every line. When we awaken from our modern nightmare, as sooner or later we all shall, this book will help us remember what that nightmare was. In YUGA, the perennial wisdom has found a new and clarion voice. Glass's poetic and novelistic vocabulary, combined with exhaustive and blithely eclectic research, the mind-boggling diversity of his sources and references, even the peculiar Table of Contents, is a radical departure. Equally at home with the Diamond Sutra and the Grundrisse of Karl Marx while being a careful student of magazine displays at the checkout counters of supermarkets, the author cheerfully presents his book as a provocation rather than as argument. But the master achievement of YUGA, which lies neither in its argument nor its style, is its voice. That voice speaks so palpably from the author's heart that we find it resonating in our hearts as well. The final pages of YUGA are celebrations of joy and love, and the discerning reader will detect those qualities lurking between the lines of the book's every page. For remember, Marty Glass is a spokesman for the truth that underlies all the world's wisdom traditions. Behind the world of appearances, samsara, maya, and the shadows on Plato's cave stands the uncreated Light, Reality, which is eternal Bliss. This reality speaks to individuals in the darkest of times, and its grace never falters. No one need be completely captive to history's downward trajectory. Its dream unfolds, and we can actually love that dream if we are awake to the fact that it is we ourselves that are collectively the immortal Dreamer. The message of YUGA is the message of Tradition, the Sophia Perennis. Huston Smith, author of The World's Religions, etc. For those seriously concerned with the plight of present-day humanity and the unprecedented crises through which human society is passing, this book offers many profound insights. It can offer guidelines and openings onto the understanding of the traditional world and that perennial wisdom whose loss has brought about the present age of spiritual darkness. Seyyed Hossein Nasr, author of Knowledge and the Sacred, etc.

African Theocology

Ebenezer Yaw Blasum, 2020-02-27

There is probably no set of issues of greater importance in the contemporary world than those that are to do with the Earth on which we live and depend. The more alienated we become from it, the more we contribute to our own destruction. Christianity's complicity in this destruction is well documented and hotly debated. Africa can ill afford to fall into the same trap that Western Christianity has in this regard. One senses the urgency of these concerns in Blasum's African Theocology. Studies in African Religious Creation Care. Extremely well informed in the field, Blasum not only draws on the three major religions in Africa Christianity Islam and African traditional religion but demonstrates familiarity with the most important recent contributions in the field from Western scholarship With its emphasis on pedagogics African Theocology will play a seminal role in the construction of curricula for an African Christian theology of the environment and is sure to be an essential contribution to all libraries in institutions of higher learning
