Raise a Parent Janis Clark Johnston, 2013-04-04 While advice abounds from a variety of sources before parents embark on their parenting journeys the only parent preparation we actually receive comes from our family and peer stories Yet most adults do not realize that in day to day challenges of guiding our children something interesting happens As we steer our children through life we reopen our own childhood roads Just when our child most needs us we become needy ourselves as adults and parents we find that we have unresolved raising issues basic needs that were not met in our childhoods Our needs and memories echo and influence many of the parenting decisions we make even though we're unaware of those influences at times Fortunately children help parents reach their needs as much as their parents help them fulfill their own Our child ends up guiding us by connecting us to some earlier time in our life when we encountered distress We dredge up a lesson and we adapt by adhering to or changing the story that we tell ourselves about who we are We re-negotiate the five basic needs that surface from our childhood memories as our youngsters pass through each of the developmental phases The self-aware parent focuses on creative problem solving by focusing on one interaction at a time It Takes a Child to Raise a Parent offers an exploration of how our own childhood memories and needs influence and shape our parenting decisions in our adult lives Offering tips stories from a variety of families and step by step exercises Janis Johnston helps parents better understand and grasp the tools necessary to face parenting challenges head on and to explore new ways of understanding ourselves our children and our family interactions Expectant parents and current parents interested in understanding their own personality development as well as the many moods of childhood and their own children will find clear guidelines for understanding their

To Raise Up the South Sally G. McMillen, 2001-12-01 In the half century after the Civil War evangelical southerners turned increasingly to Sunday schools as a means of rejuvenating their destitute region and adjusting to an ever modernizing world By educating children and later adults in Sunday school and exposing them to Christian teachings biblical truths and exemplary behavior southerners felt certain that a better world would emerge and cast aside the death and destruction wrought by the Civil War In To Raise Up the South Sally G. McMillen offers an examination of Sunday schools in seven black and white denominations and reveals their vital role in the larger quest for southern redemption McMillen begins by explaining how the schools were established detailing northern missionaries collaboration in their creation and the eventual southern resistance to this northern aid She then turns to the classroom discussing the roles of church officials teachers ministers and parents in the effort to raise pious children the different functions of men and women and the social benefits of such participation Though denominations of both races saw Sunday schools as a way to increase their numbers and mold their children white southerners rarely raised the race issue in the classroom Black evangelicals on the other hand used their Sunday schools to discuss and decry Jim Crow laws rising violence and widespread injustices Integrating the study of race class gender and religion To Raise Up the South provides an exciting new lens through which to view the turbulent years of Reconstruction and the emergence of the New South It charts the rise of an institution that became a mainstay in the lives of millions of southerners

Normal0falsefalsefalseEN USX NONEX NONE Drawing upon nearly two hundred years of recorded African American oratory The Will of a People: A Critical Anthology of Great African American Speeches edited by Richard W Leeman and Bernard K Duffy brings together in one unique volume some of this tradition's most noteworthy speeches, each paired with an astute introduction designed to highlight its most significant elements. Arranged chronologically from Maria Miller Stewart's 1832 speech Why Sit Ye Here and Die to President Barack Obama's 2009 inaugural address, these orations are tied to many of the key themes and events of American history as well as the many issues and developments in American race relations. These themes, events, and issues include the changing roles of women, Native American relations, American manifest destiny, abolitionism, the industrial revolution, Jim Crow lynching, World War I and American self-determination, the rise of the New Deal and government social programs, the Civil Rights Movement and desegregation, the Vietnam War, Nixon and Watergate, gay and lesbian rights, immigration, and the rise of a mediated culture. Leeman and Duffy have carefully selected the most eloquent and relevant speeches by African Americans, including those by Sojourner Truth, Frederick Douglass, Frances Ellen Watkins Harper, Ida B. Wells, Barnett Booker T. Washington, Mary Church Terrell, W. E. B. Du Bois, Marcus Garvey, Martin Luther King Jr., Malcolm X, Stokely Carmichael, Barbara Jordan, Jesse Jackson, and Marian Wright Edelman, many of which have never received significant scholarly attention. The Will of a People is the first book to pair the full texts of the most important African American orations with substantial introductory essays intended to guide the reader's understanding of the speaker, the speech, its rhetorical interpretation, and the historical context in which it occurred. Broadly representative of the African American experience as well as what it means to be American, this valuable collection will serve as an essential guide to the African American oratory tradition.
