Economic Concept of Exchange Caroline Gerschlager, 2012-12-06 Exchange is a pervasive concept in everyday life affecting phenomena as diverse as interpersonal relationships and market transactions In addition economists have used the concept in a highly specific and clearly delineated way Against this background Expanding the Economic Concept of Exchange sets out to expand the concept of exchange by crossing the boundaries laid down by economists and by examining the function played by deceptions self deceptions and illusions The main motivation for expanding the concept of exchange was the realization that in the prototypical economic model deception is not taken into account Hence economists traditionally regard deception as some sort of irrationality as a flaw in an otherwise perfectly rational process Authors represented in this volume take a different approach examining deception as a constituent quality of exchange This is shown by the contributions drawing on recent developments in economic theory by those with an anthropological orientation as well as by a contribution referring specifically to Adam Smith An interrogation into deception is long overdue in economics This volume prepares the ground for and makes the first contributions to explicitly acknowledging deceptions self deceptions and illusions as fundamental dimensions allowing us as economists to further research and develop the concept of change A particular and perhaps unexpected focus of this volume lies on anthropology because economics can clearly benefit from integrating selected results on deception from outside its expanding domain It is primarily targeted at economists interested in institutional aspects of exchanges and social theory In addition the topic will find interested readers from anthropology cultural studies science studies philosophy

Theology and the First Theory of Sacrifice Ivan Strenski,2003-01-01 Strenski argues that public discourse about religious notions like sacrifice cannot be theological in our modern societies Theological notions of sacrifice and theological approaches to it should be replaced by those like that developed by the Durkheimians because theological discourse cannot but help being religiously biased

On the Margins of Religion Frances Pine,João de Pina-Cabral,2008 Focusing on places objects bodies narratives and ritual spaces where religion may be found or inscribed the authors reveal the role of religion in contesting rights to places to knowledge and to property as well as access to resources Through analyses of specific historical processes in terms of responses to socio economic and political change the chapters consider implicitly or explicitly the problematic relation between science including social sciences and anthropology in particular and religion and how this connects to the new religious globalisation of the twenty first century Their ethnographies highlight the embodiment of religion and its location in landscapes built spaces and religious sites which may be contested physically or ideologically or encased in memory and often in silence Taken together they show the importance of religion as a resource to the believers a source of solace spiritual comfort and self willed submission
