Gelpi SJ, 2008-04-01 This study ponders different ways Christian thinkers understood humanity in its relationship to divine grace It names fallacies that have in the past skewed theological understanding of that relationship It argues that the philosophy of Charles Sanders Peirce avoided those same fallacies and provides a novel frame of reference for rethinking the theology of grace The author shows how the insights of other American philosophers flesh out undeveloped aspects of Peirce's thought He formulates a metaphysics of experience derived from his philosophical analysis Finally he develops an understanding of supernatural grace as the transmutation and transvaluation of human experience

The Social Self in Zen and American Pragmatism Steve Odin,1996-01-10 The thesis of this work is that in both modern Japanese philosophy and American pragmatism there has been a paradigm shift from a monological concept of self as an isolated I to a dialogical concept of the social self as an I Thou relation including a communication model of self as an individual society interaction It is also shown that for both traditions all aesthetic moral and religious values are a function of the social self arising through communicative interaction between the individual and society However at the same time this work critically examines major ideological conflicts arising between the social self theories of modern Japanese philosophy and American pragmatism with respect to such problems as individualism versus collectivism freedom versus determinism liberalism versus communitarianism and relativism versus objectivism
