Shark Utilization Marketing And Trade Fao Fisheries Technical Papers:

Shark Utilization, Marketing and Trade Stefania Vannuccini, 1999-01-01 Sharks are only a small proportion of world recorded fish landings but they are a versatile and valuable resource. They sustain important fisheries in several countries and are a cheap but valuable source of protein for coastal communities dependent on subsistence fisheries. Sharks are exploited for their meat, fins, teeth, cartilage, liver, and other internal organs. This report details species used and methods of preparation for various purposes. FAO Fisheries Technical Paper, 1999. Shark Utilization, Marketing and Trade Stefania Vannuccini, 1999. Sharks belong to the Chondrichthyes class together with skates, rays, and chimaeras and are found in a wide variety of habitats worldwide, employing many biological strategies. Although sharks make up only a small percentage of the world's recorded fish landings, they are extremely versatile and are a valuable resource. They are of primary importance in some regions of the world, sustaining important fisheries in some countries. Moreover, they are a cheap but valuable source of protein for coastal communities dependent on subsistence fisheries. Humans can utilize much of the carcass for food or other uses. Sharks are exploited for their meat, fins, skin, liver, teeth, cartilage, and other internal organs. It is not possible to utilize every shark for all these uses as the methods of preservation and preparation are often mutually exclusive and not all shark species are suitable for all applications. This report details the species used and the methods of preparation for the various purposes. It assembles information as well as the latest statistics available from those parts of the world where sharks are important economically as a substantial fisheries sector, a contribution to human food, or a valuable trading item. Management Techniques for Elasmobranch Fisheries Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 2005-01-01. This publication describes the scientific principles and techniques used for resource management of elasmobranch fisheries with emphasis on the particular context of elasmobranchs. The management characteristics of these fishes are described, their common bycatch character, and their biological constraints on productivity, low growth rate, late maturity, and low fecundity. Stock assessment of elasmobranchs is described in the context of management objectives in a wide management context. Special attention is given to accurate species identification given the prevalent aggregating of landings data across species, genera, and often families in this group. Techniques and experiences for tagging elasmobranchs for population estimation are described as well as methods of genetic techniques for stock identification. Report of the FAO Technical Working Group on the Conservation and Management of Sharks Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations. Technical Working Group on the Conservation and Management of Sharks, 1999-01-01. Report of the FAO Expert Consultation on the Implementation of the FAO International Plan of Action for the Conservation and Management of Sharks, Rome, 6-8 December, 2005, 2006-01-01. The FAO Expert Consultation held in Rome in December 2005 reviewed available information and national institutional and personal experiences in relation to factors governing the success of the IPOA SHARKS conservation and management programme, including the constraints to programme implementation and options for improving its efficacy and effectiveness The conclusion of the consultation was that the IPOA SHARKS programme was a beneficial endeavour and that efforts to improve its effectiveness should be strengthened
