Shaw Versus Chesterton:

Shaw Versus Chesterton George Bernard Shaw, G. K. Chesterton, 2000-10 This booklet presents the text of a debate between noted Fabian George Bernard Shaw and Distributist novelist and poet G K Chesterton with Hilaire Belloc in the chair It tackles issues such as the right to private property state ownership and central planning versus the market Issues that are as important now as they were then The tone of the debate is good humoured and each participant makes jokes at the other's expense

A Comparison of the Thought of George Bernard Shaw and G. K. Chesterton Henry J. Donaghy, 1966 The friendship between George Bernard Shaw and Gilbert Chesterton two inveterate opponents is sufficiently well known It began about 1901 when Chesterton was a young man of 27 and Shaw 18 years his elder and it continued until the death of the former in 1936 This literary friendship is perhaps unique in that it was founded upon a hostility of ideas from the start and flourished upon ever growing disagreement But though the men appear at first glance to have little in common whether in appearance in habit or in thought it will be seen that this is not the case There have been a few short studies on the argument of Shaw and Chesterton Vincent Brome for example has published an essay G K Chesterton Versus Bernard Shaw in which he indicates some general contrasts in the men Also William Irvine has a brief article in which he shows how they agreed at least in putting the same general questions to a dying Victorian world However there has not been a comprehensive comparison of the two men treating their general thought and pointing up the specific areas of agreement and disagreement It is the purpose of this thesis to furnish such a comparison It will look at the major ideas in the philosophy of each man to the extent that they offer comparison or contrast with each other and have some relevance to contemporary thought The value of a comparative study of these men lies in the fact that their ideas represent the principal reform views of the post Victorian period They are not isolated voices in an Edwardian wilderness but are the most articulate spokesmen for two very different groups This is not to say that anyone much less any group was thoroughly Shavian or even Chestertonian Yet essentially Shaw can be grouped with a number of similar reformers like Sidney and Beatrice Webb Havelock Ellis and the Fabians in general And Chesterton spoke not just for himself but his views are very much those of Hilaire Belloc Cecil Chesterton and the group that came to be known as the Distributists Shaw after writing five novels which he was not able to publish and after trying his hand at art music and literary criticism hit upon the play as the proper vehicle for his ideas This was a happy discovery both for Shaw and for the stage It gave Shaw a major art form to propagate his ideas to play his role of prophet to the English stage which was suffering from the influence of Scribe and the pi ce bien faite a stage as intellectually sterile as contemporary American drama As we shall see Chesterton never found a major art form for his ideas His fictional characters could not live on their own and his verbal and conceptual cleverness constantly called attention to the primacy of his ideas Thus despite an extraordinary imagination he remained most effective when writing straightforward social philosophy theology or criticism One must remember however that Shaw as well as Chesterton boasted of being primarily a journalist He too thought that his first duty remained that of educating England He said significantly Journalism can claim to be the highest form of literature for all the highest literature is journalism The writer who aims at producing the platitudes which are not for an age but for all time has his reward in being unreadable in all ages whilst Plato and Aristophanes trying to knock some sense into the Athens of their day Shakespeare peopling that same Athens with Elizabethan mechanics and Warwickshire hunts Ibsen photographing the local doctors and vestrymen of a Norwegian parish Carpaccio painting the life of St Ursula exactly as if she were a lady living in the next street to him are still alive and at home everywhere among the dust and ashes of many thousands of academic punctilious most archaeologically correct men of letters and art who spend their lives haughtily avoiding the journalist s vulgar obsession with the ephemeral I also am a journalist proud of it deliberately cutting out of my works all that is not journalism convinced that nothing that is not journalism will live long as literature or be of any use whilst it does live I deal with all periods but I never study any period but the present which I have not yet mastered and never shall and as a dramatist I have no clue to any historical or other personage save that part of him which is also myself and which may be nine tenths of him or ninety nine hundredths as the case may be if indeed I do not transcend the creature but which anyhow is all that can ever come within my knowledge of his soul The man who writes about all people and all time It will be evident from the last couple of sentences that what Shaw meant by journalism also embraced those qualities of the universal which raise art above the merely ephemeral Yet his primary concern with matters topical should be noted Shaw because of his superiority as an artist is much more alive and much more popular today than Chesterton Is this the same as saying that Shaw s ideas are more popular By no means It should be evident by the end of this dissertation to what extent the respective philosophies of the two men have current credit And it should also be evident to what extent this contemporary acceptability of their ideas is due to their art forms P 1 4 Shaw Versus George Bernard Shaw G. K. Chesterton, Aeterna Press, 1914 A peculiar difficulty arrests the writer of this rough study at the very start Many people know Mr Bernard Shaw chiefly as a man who would write a very long preface even to a very short play And there is truth in the idea he is indeed a very prefatory sort of person He always gives the explanation before the incident but so for the matter of that does the Gospel of St John For Bernard Shaw as for the mystics Christian and heathen and Shaw is best described as a heathen mystic the philosophy of facts is anterior to the facts themselves In due time we come to the fact the incarnation but in the beginning was the Word Aeterna Press A Comparison of the Thought of George Bernard Shaw and G.K.
