Political Protest and Social Change C. Andrain, D. Apter, 1994-12-19 This book probes three issues about the linkage between political protests and social change First why do individuals participate in protest activities including nonviolent movements and revolutions How do cultural beliefs sociopolitical structures personal attitudes motives and perceptions shape the decision to participate Second why do participants choose certain tactics Protesters use different types of tactics violent vs nonviolent public vs covert organized vs spontaneous and confrontation vs accommodation with other groups political parties and government agencies Most activists view a particular tactic as a useful means to attain their policy demands Third what policy consequences emerge from the activities of protest movements The book explores the impact of protests on social change and on the distribution of political power particularly greater access of subordinate groups to government policymakers A theory of political opportunities helps explain these issues about the origins activities and outcomes of protests

Glocalized Security Abu Bakarr Bah, 2025-06-03 What forces drive violent conflicts and whose interests are protected by military involvement In those conflicts how do domestic factors fuse with external dynamics and what issues spell the difference between successful and failed intervention Enter Glocalized Security a concept that argues that this fusion of domestic and external matters produces new war dynamics which require both substantial domestic reforms and realignment of external interests to achieve sustainable peace In this edited collection contributors use this concept to examine grievances and interests in and around war torn countries Combining a variety of disciplines from sociology and political science to peace studies and public policy and administration these case studies draw from over three decades of international military interventions around the world including Afghanistan Turkey Somalia Iraq Nigeria and Nepal Analyzing the intersectional relationship of the local and global Glocalized Security provides new insights into the problems of international security and why international military interventions often fail to ensure peace and security in conflict zones where these factors have morphed into terrorism warfare or zones of national interest among major world and regional powers By focusing on ethnicity religion poverty governance and the other most common motivators of violent conflicts Glocalized Security provides a crucial conceptual basis for understanding international relations in the twenty first century sponsorship can contribute to authoritarian practices is three significant ways by increasing the likelihood that authoritarian regimes will pursue authoritarian practices such as coups repression or election fraud by contributing to the implementation of those practices and finally by shielding autocratic actors from international punishment after such practices are pursued External sponsorship can thus lower the costs of authoritarian behaviour and protect and shield authoritarian regimes from the negative consequences of their actions Oxford Studies in Democratization is a series for scholars and students of comparative politics and related disciplines Volumes concentrate on the comparative study of the democratization process that accompanied the decline and termination of the cold war The geographical focus of the series is primarily Latin America the Caribbean Southern and Eastern Europe and relevant experiences in Africa and Asia The series editor is Laurence Whitehead Senior Research Fellow Nuffield College University of Oxford

The Performance of Africa's International Courts James Thuo Gathii, 2020-11-26 The performance of international courts has traditionally been judged against criteria of compliance and effectiveness Whilst these are clearly desirable objectives for litigants before Africa's international courts this book shows that we must look beyond these criteria to fully appreciate the impact of these courts This book shows how litigants use their participation in international litigation to achieve other objectives to amplify political disputes with their governments to build their movement to educate the public about their cause and to challenge the status quo Chapters in this collection show how these courts act as coordination points for opposition political parties to name and shame dominant parties for violation of their organizational rights Others demonstrate how Africa's international courts serve as transitional justice mechanisms in which truth telling about ongoing conflict and authoritarian governance receives significant attention This attention serves as a platform to galvanize resistance against continued authoritarian rule especially from outside the conflict countries Ultimately the book shows that these courts must be judged against new and broader criteria and understood as increasingly important venues for waging political social environmental and legal struggles

State Responses to Human Security Courtney Hillebrecht, Tyler R. White, Patrice C. McMahon, 2013-11-07 The aim of this book is to analyse why and how states respond to human security both at home and abroad Although states still define security as the defense of territory from military attack increasingly security pertains to the protection of human beings from violence This violence can emerge from rebels drug traffickers terrorism and even environmental and demographic changes While previous literature in this field has provided rich empirical detail about human security crises it is generally quiet about how states respond to these crises State Responses to Human Security fills this lacuna by bringing in concepts from international security studies and focusing on states' perceptions of power and the changing nature of human security Instead of debating whether or not human security exists the authors in this volume agree that human security has been redefined to include policies associated with violence toward individuals and groups and draw on recent events in the Middle East China and Mexico to understand how and when human security issues prompt state responses and affect international relations The case studies analysed in this book suggest that states respond to human security threats differently but in both the domestic context and abroad power and perceptions matter greatly in shaping states reactions to human security concerns This book will be of much interest to students of human security foreign policy international relations and security studies in general
