Representation and Design examines Old English poetry from the point of view of its interpretation beginning with the assumption that Anglo Saxon concepts of reading were probably very different from those that dominate our own literary culture The book insists on the semantic interaction of representation and design two aspects of Old English poetry that traditionally have been examined separately and draws on Anglo Saxon pictorial art as a model throughout It disputes the conventional dichotomy that interpretation makes between content and form redefines content as a particular mode of representation a reflection of texts and ideologies and recognizes form as complex and meaningful design so that the two no longer can be distinguished in the process of interpretation The author examines a range of texts Beowulf The Wanderer the Exeter Book riddles manuscript illuminations and the sculpture of the Ruthwell cross in order to consider the place of the reader the frame and the past in Anglo Saxon representation Through this process she traces a fluidity of signification and suggests that an Anglo Saxon aesthetic would be both complex and enigmatic Profiles in Canadian Literature Jeffrey

M. Heath, 1991-09-01 A series of essays on Canadian authors profiling the writers work providing insight into themes and giving a chronology of the authors life Intimate Strangers Margaret Laurence, Gabrielle Roy, 2004-12-02 The books of

Margaret Laurence and Gabrielle Roy are among the most beloved in Canadian literature In 1976 when both were at the height of their careers they began a seven year written correspondence Laurence had just published her widely acclaimed The Diviners for which she won her second Governor General s Award and Roy had returned to the centre of the literary stage with a series of books that many critics now consider her richest and most mature works Although both women had been born and raised in Manitoba Laurence in Neepawa and Roy in St Boniface they met only once in 1978 at a conference in Calgary As these letters reveal their prairie background created a common understanding of place and culture that bridged the differences of age and language Here Laurence and Roy discuss everything from their own and each other s writing to Canadian politics housekeeping publishing and their love of nature With a thoughtful introduction by Paul G Socken these lovely and intimate letters record the moving affectionate friendship between two remarkable women In Translation nuances of language can be shaped through translation Editor Jane Everett has arranged the letters here in chronological order and has added critical notes to fill in the historical and literary gaps as well as to identify various editorial problems Shedding light on the process of writing and translating In Translation is an invaluable addition to the study of Canadian writing and to the literature on these two important figures
