The Roar, the Silence, the Grandeur John Reymann, 1991-06-01 The Silence and the Roar Nihad Sirees, 2013-03-05 Available in English for the first time The Silence and the Roar is a funny sexy dystopian novel about the struggle of an individual over tyranny The Silence and the Roar follows a day in the life of Fathi Sheen an author banned from publishing because he refuses to write propaganda for the ruling government The entire populace has mobilized to celebrate the twenty year anniversary of the reigning despot in this unnamed Middle eastern country The heat is oppressive and loudspeakers blare as an endless parade takes over the streets Desperate to get away from the noise and the zombie like masses Fathi leaves his house to visit his mother and his girlfriend but en route stops to help a student who is being beaten by the police Fathi's ID papers are confiscated and he is told to report to the police station before night falls When Fathi turns himself in he is led from one department to another in an ever widening bureaucratic labyrinth His only weapon against the irrationality of the government employees is his sense of irony Tinged with a Kafkaesque sense of the absurd The Silence and the Roar explores what it means to be truly free in mind and body The Roar of Silence!, 2014 BIRTH LIFE MURDER G.G. Kalfas, 2019-03-20 BIRTH LIFE MURDER is an invocation of poetry philosophies and short stories which pertain to the unfolding circumstances within our lives We are born into this world we live through our life and sometimes we murder parts of ourselves in the process All men are created equal but not all men live equally Staying true to one's own ideals and life's purpose will be violently ripped away if an unrelenting hold to them is not maintained Do you remember who you really are Did you lose your identity meandering down your life's path In order to understand life you must first understand its language How long can you live not knowing who or what you are How long can you meander through your life until you addresses the detachment of women's voices from their bodies in some films. The book argues that this detachment is often used as a feminist strategy to bypass constraints on female portrayal on camera. The book dissects how these voices are often marginalized within the cinematic space either structurally narratively or due to patriarchal adherence. It also discusses the concept of the acousmatic voice particularly in the context of Iranian cinema where the female voice off is used as a spatial veil contributing to the marginalization of women. Although Michael Chion's concept of the acousmêtre is based on classic Hollywood cinema, this book shows that the mere presence of an off-screen voice does not ensure a predictable impact in the filmic world. In New Iranian Cinema influenced by factors like modesty rules, the off-screen voice untethered to a body can serve as a presentational strategy rather than just a cinematic narrational device. The book also investigates the unveiling of the female voice as a subject of aesthetic admiration and desire within the cinematic realm, navigating censorship through religious and cinematic elements and explores how cinematic spaces manipulate the presence and embodiment of the unveiled voice to avoid revealing its true source. The book is also informed by the author's experience as the first woman sound designer working in the Iranian film industry.

Princess, Priestess, Poet Betty De Shong Meador, 2025-10-01 Living in 2300 BCE Sumerian high priestess Enheduanna became the first author of historical record by signing her name to a collection of hymns written for forty-two temples throughout the southern half of ancient Mesopotamia, the civilization now known as Sumer. Each of her hymns confirmed to the worshipers in each city the patron deity's unique character and significance. The collected hymns became part of the literary canon of the remarkable Sumerian culture and were copied by scribes in the temples for hundreds of years after Enheduanna's death. Betty De Shong Meador offers here the first collection of original translations of all forty-two hymns along with a lengthy examination of the relevant deity and city as well as an analysis of the verses themselves. She introduces the volume with discussions of Sumerian history and mythology as well as with what is known about Enheduanna, thought to be the first high priestess to the moon god Nanna and daughter of Sargon, founder of one of the first empires in human history.
