has been called the finest example of anti war fiction written during Japan's march to war in China and the Pacific In it Ishikawa denounces the chorus of jingoism that swept Japan and via a metafictional tale within a tale he warns against the suicidal destruction to which complicity in warmongering will lead The allegorical Moon Gems written in the spring of 1945 further explores the tenuous position of the writer moving against the current in a country not only still at war but very near defeat In The Legend of Gold and The Jesus of the Ruins both from 1946 Japan has been reduced to a charred wasteland yet Ishikawa envisions destruction as fertile ground for rebirth and resurrection Finally the semi surrealistic novella The Raptor plumbs the meanings and possibilities of peace in the post Occupation era William Tyler's eminently readable translations are faithfully expressive of stylistic and tonal nuances in the original works In a perceptive introduction and the critical essays that follow Tyler emphasizes Ishikawa's importance as an anti establishment even resistance writer and argues that the writer's political iconoclasm goes hand in hand with the modernism of his literary experimentation The Legend of Gold will be of tremendous importance in enlarging a Western understanding of the development of the writer's role as social critic and the evolution of the modernist movement in postwar Japan
