strategic studies military history and maritime studies in particular Testing American Sea Power Craig C. Felker,2013-03-28 The Pacific Theater in World War II depended on American sea power This power was refined between 1923 and 1940 when the U S Navy held twenty one major fleet exercises designed to develop strategy and allow officers to enact plans in an operational setting Prior to 1923 naval officers relied heavily on the theories of Capt Alfred Thayer Mahan who argued that sea control was vital to military victory best attained through use of the battleship Fleet exercises however allowed valuable practice with other military resources and theories As a direct result of these exercises the navy incorporated different technologies and updated its own outdated strategies Although World War II brought unforeseen challenges and the disadvantages of simulation exercises quickly became apparent fleet problems may have opened the door to different ideas that allowed the U S Navy ultimately to succeed Testing American Sea Power challenges the conventional wisdom that Mahanian theory held the American Navy in a steel grip Felker s research and analysis the first to concentrate on the navy s interwar exercises will make a valuable contribution to naval history for historians military professionals and naval instructors

Architects of Continental Seapower Jeremy Stocker,2020-10-01 This book describes and analyses two iconic figures in twentieth century naval history the German Admiral Alfred von Tirpitz and the Russian Admiral Sergei Gorshkov It examines the men what they thought and wrote about seapower the fleets they created and the strategic consequences of what they did More broadly it draws on the respective histories of the post 1897 Imperial German Navy and the post 1956 Soviet Navy to examine the continental bid for large scale seapower The work argues that both individuals built navies that did not and could not fulfil the objectives for which they were created Drawing on the legacies of both men the book also develops some wider ideas about the creation of large navies by continental states with cautionary lessons for today s emerging powers India and China Both admirals have received book length biographies but this is the first attempt at a comparative study and the first to draw broader strategic lessons from their respective attempts as continental navalists to challenge maritime states This book will be of much interest to students of naval history strategic studies and International Relations
