The Conterpart, and Complement of "The Supremacy of Man" John Pulsford, 2025-07-12 Reprint of the original first published in 1883 The Antigonos publishing house specialises in the publication of reprints of historical books We make sure that these works are made available to the public in good condition in order to preserve their cultural heritage The Coat Without Seam Maurice Baring, 1929 The Seam Line Israel Drori, 2000 Many Arab communities in Israel's Galilee region are home to export oriented textile factories owned by multinational corporations whose Jewish managers employ local Arab and Druse women as seamstresses and low level work supervisors Based on five years of ethnographic research this book explores how these managers and workers negotiate the terms and meanings of factory work integrating work culture with the norms and values of the host towns in order for employment arrangements to succeed The entrance of industrial corporations into developing areas of the world particularly in those industries employing primarily women has generated tension between traditional familial and social roles and the demands of industrial working life In Israel these tensions are further complicated by the social and political dynamics of Arab Jewish conflict as well as the strictly demarcated roles of women and men in traditional Arab society The resolution of these tensions on the shop floor shapes the social relations of production the factories management systems family life in the industrial towns and individual status and autonomy The negotiation involves unequal power relations manifested in a dual patriarchal structure the Arab cultural practice of male domination of women as well as the formal management system of the textile concern which dictates the nature of relationships between Jewish managers and Arab women workers To meet their business goals the managers must cooperate with the community that provides their workforce adapting its norms and appropriating its worldview The managers are constrained by the strict social rules of Arab and Druse society and respond by attempting to harness and manipulate local family values to foster personal commitment furthering production goals through paternal control The consequence of this paternalism is a workforce that relates to the organization as family identifies with its goals and internalizes feelings of loyalty However the workforce also uses the plant as the arena for developing self awareness and enhancing personal independence and status within the family The seamstresses emerge as active shapers of the organizational culture forcing the managers to adapt to and comply with their personal needs and perceptions of work
