Everyday Stories Rachel Bowlby, 2016-07-01 The Literary Agenda is a series of short polemical monographs about the importance of literature and of reading in the wider world and about the state of literary education inside schools and universities The category of the literary has always been contentious What is clear however is how increasingly it is dismissed or is unrecognised as a way of thinking or an arena for thought It is sceptically challenged from within for example by the sometimes rival claims of cultural history contextualized explanation or media studies It is shaken from without by even greater pressures by economic exigency and the severe social attitudes that can follow from it by technological change that may leave the traditional forms of serious human communication looking merely antiquated For just these reasons this is the right time for renewal to start reinvigorated work into the meaning and value of literary reading We live in days no leaving them or choosing them What's in a day With their natural narrative arc they begin and they end and in between we talk about how they are going or wonder where they have gone They each have their small stories non stories ephemeral stories So every day slips by most days much like most other days We eat we sleep we go to work we endure enjoy continue Day after day day before day it is the recurring of no particular story in endless beginningless succession At the same time any single day is also a unique date with its multi digit identity its moment at last and never again of here and now today And on longer scales the slow small shifts of ordinary days and their surrounding stories will eventually remake the days that have been and gone as the times that are no more An ordinary day from decades let alone centuries ago must now be a once long passed away the old days to be regretted or to be revived in all the curiosity of their historical difference Everyday Stories makes us think again about the ordinary life we are in day after day and day by day always the same and always slightly changing Entering into the single day drawing out the stories that surround us this book goes into everyday stories of many descriptions old and new both in literature and in that story laden place and time we call real life
