Literary Communication as Dialogue Roger D. Sell,2020-11-15 As traced by Roger D Sell literary communication is a process of community making As long as literary authors and those responding to them respect each other s human autonomy literature flourishes as an enjoyable though often challenging mode of interaction that is truly dialogical in spirit This gives rise to author respondent communities whose members represent existential commonalities blended together with historical differences These heterogeneous literary communities have a larger social significance in that they have long served as counterweights to the hegemonic tendencies of modernity and more recently to postmodernity s well intentioned but restrictive politics of identity In post postmodern times their ethos is increasingly one of pleasurable egalitarianism The despondent anti hedonism of the twentieth century intelligentsia can now seem rather dated Some of the papers selected for this volume develop Sell s ideas in mainly theoretical terms But most of them offer detailed criticism of particular anglophone writers ranging from Shakespeare Ben Jonson and other poets and dramatists of the early modern period through

A Social Archaeology of Roman and Late Antique Egypt Ellen Swift, Jo Stoner, April Pudsey, 2021-11-11 Artefact evidence has the unique power to illuminate many aspects of life that are rarely explored in written sources yet this potential has been underexploited in research on Roman and Late Antique Egypt This book presents the first in depth study that uses everyday artefacts as its principal source of evidence to transform our understanding of the society and culture of Egypt during these periods It represents a fundamental reference work for scholars with much new and essential information on a wide range of artefacts many of which are found not only in Egypt but also in the wider Roman and late antique world By taking a social archaeology approach it sets out a new interpretation of daily life and aspects of social relations in Roman and Late Antique Egypt contributing substantial insights into everyday practices and their social meanings in the past Artefacts from University College London's Petrie Museum of Egyptian Archaeology are the principal source of evidence most of these objects have not been the subject of any previous research The book integrates the close study of artefact features with other sources of evidence including papyri and visual material Part one explores the social functions of dress objects while part two explores the domestic realm and everyday experience An important theme is the life course and how both dress related artefacts and ordinary functional objects construct age and gender related status and facilitate appropriate social relations and activities There is also a particular focus on wider social experience in the domestic context as well as broader consideration of economic and social changes across the period

Imitation and Contamination of the Classics in the Comedies of Ben Jonson Tom

Harrison, 2022-10-12 This book focuses on the influence of classical authors on Ben Jonson's dramaturgy with particular emphasis on the Greek and Roman playwrights and satirists. It illuminates the interdependence of the aspects of Jonson's creative personality by considering how classical performance elements including the Aristophanic Great Idea chorus, Terentian Plautine performative strategies, and performative elements from literary satire manifest themselves in the structuring and staging of his plays. This fascinating exploration contributes to the performative turn in early modern studies by reframing Jonson's classicism as essential to his dramaturgy as well as his erudition. The book is also a case study for how the early modern education system's emphasis on imitative/contaminative practices prepared its students, many of whom became professional playwrights, for writing for a theatre that had a similar emphasis on recycling and recombining performative tropes and structures.
