is one of the most detailed philosophically oriented attempts at explaining Marx's own position on philosophical anthropology encompassing the organic conditions of human sociality the humanization of nature and the naturalization of man In the second decade of the 21st Century rethinking Marx's intensely historicized conception of human nature has become an important consideration for critical and social theory due to a renewed interest in finding a possible anthropological basis for normatively grounding radical social critique for example in the works of Axel Honneth Charles Taylor or Emmanuel Renault Gyorgy Markus belongs to the small group of Hungarian theorists associated with Georg Lukacs and usually referred to as the Budapest School He completed his philosophical training at Lomonosov University in Moscow in 1957 Due to ideological disputes he was removed from his teaching positions in Hungary in 1973 and fled in 1977 to Australia where he has since 1978 taught at the University of Sydney This special reissue of Markus most influential work adds an introduction by Axel Honneth Director of the Frankfurt School for Social Research and Hans Joas University of Freiburg Marxist Analyses and Social Anthropology Maurice Bloch, 2013-10-11 Reflecting the first evaluation among British and American anthropologists of the relevance of Marxist theory for their discipline the studies in this volume cover a wide geographical and social spectrum ranging from rural Indonesia Imperial China Highland Burma and the Abnong kingdom of Gyaman A critical survey assesses the value of some key ideas of Marx and Engels to social anthropology and places in historical perspective the changing attitudes of social anthropologists to the Marxist tradition Originally published in 1975
