Menuge,2016-04-22 When does the exercise of an interest constitute a human right The contributors to Menuge s edited collection offer a range of secular and religious responses to this fundamental question of the legitimacy of human rights claims The first section evaluates the plausibility of natural and transcendent foundations for human rights A further section explores the nature of religious freedom and the vexed question of its proper limits as it arises in the US European and global contexts The final section explores the pragmatic justification of human rights how do we motivate the recognition and enforcement of human rights in the real world This topical book should be of interest to a range of academics from disciplines spanning law philosophy religion and politics Diseases and Diagnoses Sander L. Gilman,2017-09-08 Diseases and Diagnoses discusses why such social problems as addiction sexually transmitted diseases racial predisposition for illness surgery and beauty and electrotherapy all of which concerned thinkers a hundred years ago are reappearing at a staggering rate and in diverse national contexts In the twentieth century such problems were viewed as only historical concerns Yet in the twenty first century we once again find ourselves confronting their implications In this fascinating volume Gilman looks at historical and contemporary debates about the stigma associated with biologically transmitted diseases He shows that there is no indisputable way to measure when a disease or therapy will reappear or how it may be perceived at any given moment in time Consequently Gilman focuses on the socio cultural and political implications that the reappearance of such diseases has had on contemporary society His approach is to show how culture embedded in cultural objects both feeds and is fed by the claims of medical science as for example the reappearance of race as a cultural as well as a medical category If the twentieth century was the age of physics in the latter part of the past century and certainly in the twenty first century biological concerns are recapturing central stage Achievements of the biological sciences are changing the public s sense of what constitutes cutting edge science and medicine None has captured the public imagination more effectively than the mapping of the human genome and the promise of genetic manipulation which fuel what Gilman calls a second age of biology Although not without controversy the role of genetics appears to be key Gilman puts contemporary debates in historical context showing how they feed social and cultural concerns as well as medical possibilities Agricultural Mechanization

Despite this, scholars and analysts continue to struggle to understand the intersection of religion and violence and devise effective counterextremism policies. God's Warriors offers a novel explanation for religious violence in the modern world, challenging a common assumption that such violence stems primarily from embattled oppressed and marginalized religious minority groups who seek to assert their rights vis-à-vis majorities. Instead, argues Nilay Saiya, religious violence most commonly arises from dominant and privileged religious majorities. When historically and culturally dominant faith traditions receive special treatment from the state in the form of social and legal privileges and rhetorical support from politicians, extremists from these majoritarian communities are emboldened to target minorities. The more states favor dominant religious communities and discriminate against minority ones, the more majoritarian violence they produce. This paradox of privilege results from a global crisis of political secularism afflicting much of the world today. Drawing on examples from the world's major religious traditions—Christianity, Islam, Hinduism, Buddhism, and Judaism—Saiya's theory reshapes our understanding of the sources of religious violence in our era and carries important policy implications for decisionmakers. Textual Sources for the Study of Islam Andrew Rippin, Jan Knappert, 1990-10-15 This collection is distinguished by its wide range and the care which has clearly gone into the selection of texts for inclusion. Attention has understandably been focused on what might be called the religious aspects of Islam, such as scripture, theology, sects, law, ritual, and mysticism, but within those limits the texts chosen are marked by substantiality of content, by geographical, chronological, and social diversity, and by an intelligent use of less well-known authors. An excellent starting point for a systematic and analytical examination of Islam. G. R. Hawting, Bulletin of the School of Oriental and African Studies. Community, Covenant, and Commitment Joseph Dov Soloveitchik, Netan'el Helfgot, 2005 Community, Covenant, and Commitment, edited by Nathaniel Helfgot, brings to light unpublished manuscripts and material of Rabbi Joseph B. Soloveitchik, the foremost Orthodox Jewish thinker of the 20th century. It includes close to eighty letters and communications, most never published before, on a wide range of communal, political, and theological issues that confronted American Jewry in the twentieth century, including Communal and Public Policy Issues, Academic and Educational Issues, Orthodoxy, the Synagogue, and the American Jewish Community. Religious Zionism and the State of Israel, Interreligious Affairs, and Torah: Philosophical and Personal Insights. Environmental Crime and its Victims Toine Spapens, Rob White, Marieke Kluin, 2016-05-06 Environmental crime is one of the most profitable and fastest growing areas of international criminal activity. These types of crime, however, do not always produce an immediate consequence, and the harm may be diffused. As such, the complexity of victimization in terms of time, space, impact, and who or what is victimized is one of the reasons why governments and the enforcement community have trouble in finding suitable and effective responses. This book provides a diverse and provocative array of arguments, critiques, and recommendations from leading researchers and scholars in the field of green criminology The chapters are divided into three main sections the first part deals with specific characteristics of some of the major types of environmental crime and its perpetrators the second focuses explicitly on the problem of victimization in cases of environmental crime and the third addresses the question of how to tackle this problem Discussing these topics from the point of view of green criminological theory sociology law enforcement community wellbeing environmental activism and victimology this book will be of great interest to all those concerned about crime and the environment
