communities and their nation as occupying the American landscape Focusing on place specific local writing published before 1860 Mapping Region in Early American Writing examines a period often overlooked in studies of regional literature in America More than simply offering a prehistory of regionalist writing these essays offer new ways of theorizing and studying regional spaces in the United States as it grew from a union of disparate colonies along the eastern seaboard into an industrialized nation on the verge of overseas empire building They also seek to amplify lost voices of diverse narratives from minority frontier and outsider groups alongside their more well known counterparts in a time when America s landscapes and communities were constantly evolving

Teuton, 2018-11-01 Weaving connections between indigenous modes of oral storytelling visual depiction and contemporary American Indian literature Deep Waters demonstrates the continuing relationship between traditional and contemporary Native American systems of creative representation and signification Christopher B Teuton begins with a study of Mesoamerican writings Din sand paintings and Haudenosaunee wampum belts He proposes a theory of how and why indigenous oral and graphic means of recording thought are interdependent their functions and purposes determined by social political and cultural contexts The center of this book examines four key works of contemporary American Indian literature by N Scott Momaday Gerald Vizenor Ray A Young Bear and Robert J Conley Through a textually grounded exploration of what Teuton calls the oral impulse the graphic impulse and the critical impulse we see how and why various types of contemporary Native literary production are interrelated and draw from long standing indigenous methods of creative representation Teuton breaks down the disabling binary of orality and literacy offering readers a cogent historically informed theory of indigenous textuality that allows for deeper readings of Native American cultural and literary expression
