Nowhere in archaeology is the gap between theory and practice more evident than in its ambivalent engagement with economic development. This groundbreaking volume assembles practicing archaeologists, economists, and NGO officials in an extensive exploration of the theoretical, practical, and ethical issues raised by archaeologists' use of cultural heritage to support economic development. The first chapters consider the problem of articulating the value of tangible and intangible heritage when economic measures alone are inadequate. Subsequent chapters present regional perspectives on archaeology and development and present a host of case studies from around the globe that describe archaeologists' development projects, including some that are successful and others that are less so. These studies both suggest best practices in the implementation of development projects and illuminate the obstacles to success created by political conflict and competing human needs. Ethical issues and practical considerations converge in chapters that explore the role that members of local communities should play in the design, management, and governance of archaeological and heritage resources. In this volume, archaeologists and heritage professionals will encounter a thought-provoking international discourse concerning the path forward for archaeology as the field engages with economic development.

The History and Heritage of Scientific and Technological Information Systems W. Boyd Rayward, Mary Ellen Bowden, 2004. Emphasis for the second conference on the history of information science systems was on scientific and technical information systems in the period from the Second World War up through the early 1990s. These proceedings present the papers of historians of science and technology, information scientists, and scientists in other fields on a wide range of topics: informatics in chemistry, biology, and medicine; information developments in multinational industrial and military settings; biographical studies of pioneering individuals; and the transformation of information systems and formats in the twentieth century.

International Law and Ocean Use Management Lawrence Juda, 2013-02-01. This book places contemporary problems of ocean use management in historical context, beginning with the time of Hugo Grotius whose seminal 1609 work The Freedom of the Seas was the basis of ocean law for the next three centuries. Individual use problems are dealt with in detail and include overfishing, migrating fish stocks, and fish wars oil drilling deep sea mining and marine pollution Throughout the author notes the need to seek solutions in ocean management from a more integrated perspective Emphasis is placed on the United Nations Conference on the Law of the Sea and the resulting agreements This book therefore presents a unique breadth of view which will make it salient to policy makers diplomats scholars and ocean users National Library of Medicine Current Catalog National Library of Medicine (U.S.),1973 First multi year cumulation covers six years 1965 70 The Climate Change Counter Movement Ruth E.
