Lee Robert E. Lee,2012-10-13 As the old hero lay in the darkened room or with the lamp and hearth fire casting shadows upon his calm noble front all the missing grandeur of his form and face and brow remained and death seemed to lose its terrors and to borrow a grace and dignity in sublime keeping with the life that was ebbing away The great mind sank to its last repose almost with the equal poise of health The few broken utterances that evinced at times a wandering intellect were spoken under the influence of the remedies administered but as long as consciousness lasted there was evidence that all the high controlling influences of his whole life still ruled and even when stupor was laying its cold hand on the intellectual perceptions the moral nature with its complete orb of duties and affections still asserted itself A southern poet has celebrated in song these last significant words Strike the tent and a thousand voices were raised to give meaning to the uncertain sound when the dying man said with emphasis Tell Hill he must come up These sentences serve to show most touchingly through what fields the imagination was passing but generally his words though few were coherent but for the most part indeed his silence was unbroken From the archives comes the Civil War Classic Library Dozens of books out of print for years is now back in print for the casual reader and the
