The Arts of Leadership

Keith Grint, 2000-04-13 Leadership is still much discussed studied and sought after even though we now live in supposedly more democratic times with flatter organizations and empowered employees But how can we best understand leadership Are leaders born or made Do they have particular traits or are we all potential leaders Do the requirements for leadership change over time or are there timeless patterns Do traditional approaches help us to pick and develop leaders or are there alternative ways that advance our understanding In this book Keith Grint DS who has been studying and teaching leadership for over a decade DS investigates the notion of leadership in a series of historical case studies and rich essay portraits of some of the most famous and infamous leaders e g Florence Nightingale Richard Branson Horatio Nelson Martin Luther King Henry Ford etc The scenarios are drawn from right across the spectrum to include business politics society and the military

The first part of the book considers four sets of parallel cases where leadership appears to be a major explanation of success and failure. The second part takes the four critical issues arising from these parallel cases: identity, strategic vision, organizational tactics, and persuasive communication, and explores them in detail. One main reason we have such difficulty in explaining and enhancing leadership, Grint argues, is because we often adopt perspectives and models that obscure rather than illuminate the issues involved. The reliance upon traditional scientific analysis has not provided the anticipated advances in our understanding because leadership is more fruitfully considered as an art or more exactly an array of arts rather than as a science. Grint's rich and meticulously researched profiles combine to reveal these Arts of Leadership. Air University Library Index to Military Periodicals, 1997

British Atlantic, American Frontier Stephen John Hornsby, 2005. A pioneering work in Atlantic studies that emphasizes a transnational approach to the past. Two Ships, Two Oceans, Two Wars Colin B. Nichols, 2018-01-04. Convinced that Napoleon was about to declare war once more, the British Government ordered a secret press of seamen in 1803. This book records how the ensuing events affected one man in particular, Joseph Bates, a 21-year-old merchant seaman who proved to be of exceptional ability, rising to the rank of lieutenant. The book is based largely on the logs of the two ships in which he sailed: the frigate HMS Cerberus and the sloop of war HMS Racoon, supplemented by eye-witness accounts, official letters, medical notes, and the secret diary of one of Joseph's shipmates. Pressed in Chatham on 6th May, a few days before Britain declared war on France, he spent the next 12 years before his release from the Royal Navy. The author brings to life the detail of everyday events on board as Joseph is promoted from able seaman, servicing in the foretop, to coxswain, quartermaster, midshipman, master's mate, and lieutenant. Joseph's service, however, was full of more dramatic events: deaths by drowning, falls from the rigging, cholera, or tuberculosis. He was engaged in battles, attacks on the French coast, the capture of a town in the Caribbean, an explosion in the Racoon that killed many of the crew, and the near-sinking of the ship. But there were lighter moments: the celebrations on crossing the Equator and riding horses borrowed from the Mexican army. One highlight found in the secret diary of a shipmate is his single-handed attempt to transport a very large hog back to the ship. After capturing the last American fort on the Pacific coast, Joseph's ship sailed to Hawaii and Tahiti, hunting American shipping. Her mission completed, Racoon once more rounded to the Horn, and as a final duty, escorted a convoy back to England. Joseph's service was ended. Admirals in the Age of Nelson Lee Bienkowski, 2003. The author makes liberal use of primary source material and quotes for the first time from letters and journal entries previously unknown to the public. Among those profiled are admirals who achieved their fame during keynote battles: the noble-born Lord Howe at the Glorious First of June, Lord Duncan at Camperdown, Sir John Duckworth at San Domingo, and Lord de Saumarez at Algeciras. Manxmen at Sea in the Age of Nelson, 1760-1815 Matthew Richardson, 2024-04-18. The Isle of Man is predominantly a maritime nation. For many generations, its menfolk have made their living from the sea, sometimes as fishermen, but often as crewmen aboard merchant vessels or warships. Indeed, such were their skills of seamanship that they were in great demand for the latter in time of war As smugglers or as privateers they made their living on the waves in the Atlantic Caribbean or Pacific Whether taken by a Press Gang or enlisted voluntarily the Manx saw action in some of the greatest naval events between 1760 and 1815 The Isle of Man had a high degree of literacy and education even among the poor at this time and consequently a significant body of first hand evidence has survived from those who served below decks aboard merchant ships privateers and warships Some such as Peter Heywood were eyewitness to the most famous event in naval history the Mutiny on the Bounty Others such as John Quilliam climbed the naval career ladder served with Nelson and gained distinction at the greatest sea battle in history Trafalgar One Captain Hugh Crow fought against the French made his fortune in the slave trade and commanded the last legal voyage In this book we meet them all and their words echo to us across the waves and down the centuries
