Locating the Excerpta Medica International Congress Series by Number

BY CAROLYN G. WEAVER, *Head
Reference Department*

*Leon S. McGoogan Library of Medicine
University of Nebraska Medical Center
Omaha, Nebraska*

ONE OF the more frequently cited monographic series in medical literature is the Excerpta Medica International Congress Series (ICS). It began publication in 1952 with several special congress issues of the Excerpta Medica abstracting journals, and by late 1979 included almost 500 numbered titles.

Reference and interlibrary loan personnel are frequently asked to verify or locate items in this series on the basis of the ICS number alone. Typically, a patron will present a bibliography with a reference in journal citation format (i.e., author, article title, ICS number as the source, pages, and date), and ask where to locate the article. It is a fortunate librarian indeed who can check the card catalog or serial record and locate the item by number in the library's collection.

The McGoogan Library currently maintains a standing order for the series, and the card catalog contains a series entry by number for each cataloged item. However, the reference staff receives frequent requests for numbers published prior to the time our standing order was established, or those which may not have received a series-added entry in the card catalog. It then becomes necessary to search additional sources to verify or locate these titles.

For several years we have kept a copy of the Elsevier-North Holland publisher's listing of the series at the reference desk, and this was considered a "quick and dirty" source for verification. The current (1979) catalog contains a relatively complete list of the series, including out of print titles, through no. 447. This list is quite adequate if one wishes to purchase the item from the publisher. However, it has a number of shortcomings for the reference librarian who is trying to verify a citation or borrow the item on interlibrary loan.

Relying exclusively on the publisher's list as a source of verification may lead one to overlook the fact that a particular title is available locally. For example, ICS nos. 1-9, 14, and 17 were published as special congress numbers within the Excerpta Medica abstract journals and are readily available in many large libraries. The publisher's list makes no reference to the original source of publication, stating simply that they are out of print. Similarly, other ICS numbers have been published within subseries such as European Society for the Study of Drug Toxicity. Proceedings. (nos. 64, 73, etc.); Advances in Planned Parenthood (nos. 138, 156, etc.); and Birth Defects Original Article Series (nos. 340, 380, etc.). These subseries may or may not be identified in the publisher's list.

Further, the publisher's list frequently uses fragmentary titles that bear little relation to the main entry when the piece is cataloged. Consider, for example, ICS no. 68 as shown in the publisher's list:

Beres, D., et al. (editors). Psychoanalysis. 1963.

In CATLINE this number appeared as:

International Psycho-Analytical Congress. 23d, Stockholm, 1963. Abstracts.

Likewise, compare the entries for ICS no. 361. In the publisher's list:

Maloney. Thyroid. 1975.

In CATLINE:

International Thyroid Conference, 7th, Boston, 1975. Program, abstracts of papers presented.

The publisher's list must therefore be regarded merely as a starting point in attempting to locate titles in the series.

For titles published since 1965, the National Library of Medicine's Current Catalog is an invaluable source, since it lists the series by number with cross-references to the main entry. Prior to 1965
