Refugees and migration are not a new story in the history of humankind but in the last few years against a backdrop of huge numbers of migrants especially from war torn countries they have again been a topic of intensive and contentious discussion in politics the media and scientific publications Two United Nations framework declarations on the sustainable development goals and on refugees and migrants adopted in 2016 have prompted the editors who have a background in international criminology to invite 60 contributors from different countries to contribute their expertise on civic education aspects of the refugee and migrant crisis in the Global North and South
Comprising 35 articles this book presents an overview of the interdisciplinary issues involved in irregular migration around the world It is intended for educationists educators diplomats those working in mass media decision makers criminologists and other specialists faced with questions involving refugees and migrants as well as those interested in improving the prospects of orderly safe regular and responsible migration in the context of promoting peaceful and inclusive societies for sustainable development Rather than a timeline for migration policies based on now with states focusing on stopping migration now sending back migrants now or bringing in technicians or low skilled migrant workers now there should be a long term strategy for multicultural integration and economic assimilation This book prefaced by François Crépeau the United Nations Special Rapporteur on the human rights of migrants and William Lacy Swing Director General of the International Organization for Migration addresses the question of the rights and responsibilities involved in migration from the academic and practical perspectives of experts in the field of social sciences and welfare and charts the way forward to 2030 and beyond and also beyond the paradigm of political correctness      World report on the health of refugees and migrants World Health Organization, 2022-07-20      U.S. News & World Report, 1995-10      Museums, the Media and Refugees Katherine Goodnow, Jack Lohman, Philip Marfleet, 2008-03
Across countries and time asylum seekers and refugees have been represented in a variety of ways In some representations they appear negatively as dangers threatening to overrun a country or a region with floods of incompatible strangers In others the same people are portrayed positively with compassion and pictured as desperately in need of assistance How these competing perceptions are received has significant consequences for determining public policy human rights international agreements and the realization of cultural diversity and so it is imperative to understand how these images are perpetuated To this end this volume reflects on museum practice and the contexts stories and images of asylum seekers and refugees prevalent in our mass media Based on case studies from

Australia New Zealand and the United Kingdom the overall findings are illustrative of narratives and images common to museums and the media throughout the world They aim to challenge political rhetoric and populist media imagery and consider what forms of dissent are likely to be sustained and what narratives ultimately break through and can lead to empathy and positive political change
