

Basics of an Annotated Bibliography

An annotation is a “note” that explains or comments on a source.² An annotated bibliography is a compilation of annotations alongside the bibliographic information for each source. It differs from a Bibliography, References, or Works Cited list that provides only bibliographic information without any commentary.

Writing an annotated bibliography will help you critically evaluate books, journal articles, and other sources to determine which are useful for your research. You can use an annotated bibliography as an organizational tool for large amounts of information, making specific pieces of information easily accessible and comparable. They also provide your readers with concise, accurate background information about your topic and sources.

An annotated bibliography is usually a separate document and can be placed in an appendix at the end of your paper. However, this bibliography does not replace the Bibliography, References, or Works Cited list.

You should begin your annotated bibliography when you begin your research. After you determine a source is appropriate for your work, immediately write a brief summary or annotation on the source. As you continue your research, you can update your annotated bibliography to include additional sources that you have cited in your text.

General Tips:

- Keep each annotation to one short paragraph.
- To reduce word count, use precise terms instead of general phrases.
- Avoid using quotes or specific statistics from the source.
- For more guidance, always ask your professor, refer to your assignment sheet, and be mindful of the document’s specific audience and purpose.

Specific Formatting:

- Format each bibliographic entry using the citation style for your discipline.³
- List bibliography entries in alphabetical order by authors’ last names.
- Determine how to structure your annotation based on the type of source and your academic discipline. See the other side of this sheet for more information and some examples.
