English Journal, 1915 Teacher Narratives from the Eikaiwa Classroom: Moving Beyond "McEnglish", 2020-01-12 Teacher Narratives from the Eikaiwa Classroom Moving Beyond McEnglish Edited by Daniel Hooper and Natasha Hashimoto This book includes 16 chapters written by current and former eikaiwa English conversation school teachers to illustrate a complexity within the eikaiwa profession that has been thus far largely ignored Through teacher narratives the authors explore the unique and often problematic world of eikaiwa to present a counter narrative to what the editors regard as blanket stereotyping of a multifaceted and evolving teaching context Eikaiwa schools are found in virtually every city and town in Japan They provide conversation and test preparation classes for learners of all ages Those attending eikaiwa may be looking to prepare for an overseas holiday or work placement achieve a required TOEIC score for their company or simply enjoy a new hobby and socialise with people from different cultures and backgrounds Eikaiwa teachers often need to negotiate conflicting demands from students parents management and society at large Furthermore opportunities for professional development are scarce and research on this context is virtually non-existent. Despite the massive scale of the eikaiwa industry and the varied roles that teachers are required to fulfil within it, expatriate and ELT communities have also tended to stigmatise the work of eikaiwa teachers as being simplistic and uniform. As a result, many former eikaiwa teachers choose to forget their eikaiwa past and the way it shaped them as professionals. This volume provides an important opportunity for eikaiwa teachers to share their stories and for the editors to present a coherent and convincing case for the value that the experiences of working in English conversation schools has for our understanding of teaching and learning languages.

Developing Language and Literacy in English across the Secondary School Curriculum Urszula Clark, 2018-07-21

This book draws on original research and a language-based pedagogy approach to examine how secondary schools in the UK can devise and implement coherent language and literacy across curriculum policies and strategies so that grammar and associated metalanguage becomes an integral part of their day-to-day curriculum practices. The research was undertaken in three 11 to 18 secondary schools in England where the majority of students are categorised as having English as a second language (EAL) and where a significant minority are also socially disadvantaged. In two of the three, the author argues that paying explicit attention to the linguistic structures through which subject knowledge is realised can be of benefit to all pupils in ways that are also socially just and democratic. This book provides an important bridge between academic theory and educational practice that will appeal to applied linguists and sociolinguists as well as to teachers, teacher trainers, and practitioners.
