Palaeodiet In The Aegean Oxbow Monographs Series 96:

OIKOS Maria Relaki, Jan Driessen, 2020-07-28 This collection of papers explores whether the Levi Straussian notion of the House is a valid concept in aiding the comprehension of the social structure of Bronze Age Aegean societies The volume succeeds in stressing the advances made in the study of social structure of the Aegean on the basis of material remains

Atlas of terrestrial mammals of the Ionian and Aegean islands Marco Masseti, 2012-10-30 The goal of this book is to foster better knowledge of the mammalian fauna of the Mediterranean islands The atlas presents the current state of knowledge of the past and present distribution of the non flying terrestrial mammals of the Ionian and Aegean islands It provides a distribution map for each species with extensive references and a description of all the mammalian taxa The book also focuses on the important role of human beings in the redefinition of the insular ecological equilibrium as well as on the environmental impact of biological invasions The protection and study of this fauna can provide an opportunity for testing a range of different evolutionary theories

Paleonutrition Mark Q. Sutton, Kristin D. Sobolik, Jill K. Gardner, 2010-04-15 Paleonutrition is the analysis of prehistoric human diets and the interpretation of dietary intake in relation to health and nutrition As a field of study it addresses prehistoric diets in order to determine the biological and cultural implications for individuals as well as for entire populations placing archaeological interpretations into an anthropological context Throughout history and long before written records human culture has been constantly in flux The study of paleonutrition provides valuable insights into shifts and changes in human history whatever their causes This is the most comprehensive and up to date book on the topic Intended for students and professionals it describes the nature of paleonutrition studies reviews the history of paleonutrition research discusses methodological issues in the reconstruction of prehistoric diets presents theoretical frameworks frequently used in paleonutrition research and showcases examples in which paleonutritional analyses have been successfully conducted on prehistoric individuals groups and populations It offers an integrative approach to understanding state of the art anthropological dietary health and nutritional assessments The most recent and innovative methods used to reconstruct prehistoric diets are discussed along with the major ways in which paleonutrition data are recovered analyzed and interpreted Paleonutrition includes five contemporary case studies that provide useful models of how to conduct paleonutrition research Topics range from ancient diets in medieval Nubia to children's health in the prehistoric American Southwest to honey use by an ethnographic group of East African foragers As well as providing interesting examples of applying paleonutrition techniques these case studies illustrate the mutually beneficial linkages between ethnography and archaeology

Balkan Dialogues Maja Gori, Maria Ivanova, 2017-02-17 Spatial variation and patterning in the distribution of artefacts are topics of fundamental significance in Balkan archaeology For decades archaeologists have classified spatial clusters of artefacts into discrete cultures which have been conventionally treated as bound entities and equated with past social or ethnic groups This timely volume fulfils the need for an up to date and theoretically informed dialogue on group identity in Balkan prehistory Thirteen case studies covering the beginning of the Neolithic to the Middle Bronze Age and written by archaeologists conducting fieldwork in the region as well as by ethnologists with a research focus on material culture and identity provide a robust foundation for exploring these issues Bringing together the latest research with a particular intentional focus on the central and western Balkans this collection offers original perspectives on Balkan prehistory with relevance to the neighbouring regions of Eastern and Central Europe the Mediterranean and Anatolia Balkan Dialogues challenges long established interpretations in the field and provides a new contextualised reading of the archaeological record of this region

Cooking Up the Past Christopher Mee, Josette Renard (Prof.), 2007 This volume focuses on the ways in which the production and consumption of food developed in the Aegean region in the Neolithic and Early Bronze Age to see how this was linked to the appearance of more complex forms of social organisation Sites from Macedonia in the north of Greece down to Crete are discussed and chronologically the papers cover not only the Neolithic and Early Bronze Age but extend into the Middle and Late Bronze Age and Classical period as well The evidence from human remains animal and fish bones cultivated and wild plants hearths and ovens ceramics and literary texts is interpreted through a range of techniques such as residue and stable isotope analysis A number of key themes emerge for example the changes in the types of food that were produced around the time of the Final Neolithic Early Bronze Age transition which is seen as a particularly critical period the ways in which foodstuffs were stored and cooked the significance of culinary innovations and the social role of consumption

Archaeology Kevin Greene, 2002 A substantially revised and expanded edition of one of the most widely used and respected general introductions to the field of archaeology

Proceedings of the 4th Symposium of the Hellenic Society for Archaeometry Hellēnikē Archaïometrikē Hetaireia. Symposium, 2008 This large volume contains 86 papers selected from papers given at the 2003 conference Papers range from the broadly theoretical to the discussion of specific techniques and to practical examples of their application

Technique and Application in Dental Anthropology Joel D. Irish, Greg C. Nelson, 2008-02-07 Bringing together a variety of accomplished dental researchers this book covers a range of topics germane to the study of human and other primate teeth The chapters encompass work on individuals to samples ranging from prehistoric to modern times The focus throughout the book is the methodology required for the study of modern dental anthropology comprising the scientific methods in use today ranging from simple observation to advanced computer based analyses which can be utilized by the reader in their own dental research Originating from the 20th anniversary meeting of the Dental Anthropology Association this is a valuable reference source for graduate students academic researchers and professionals in the social and life sciences as well as clinicians

Plants and People Alexandre Chevalier, Elena Marinova, Leonor Pena-Chocarro, 2014-04-30 This first monograph in the EARTH The Dynamics of Non Industrial Agriculture 8 000 years of Resilience and Innovation series approaches the great variety of agricultural practices in human terms It focuses on the relationship between plants and people the complexity of agricultural processes and their organisation within particular communities and societies Collaborative European research among archaeologists archaeobotanists ethnographers historians and agronomists using a broad analytical scale of investigation seeks to establish new common ground for integrating different approaches By means of interdisciplinary examples this book showcases the relationship between people and plants across wide ranging and diverse spatial and temporal milieus including crop diversity the use of wild foodstuffs social context status and choices of food plants

Identification of Ancient Olive Oil Processing Methods Based on Olive Remains Peter Warnock, 2007

This research focuses on the complex issue of olive oil processing and the resulting technological changes associated with the olive oil industry during this industry's expansion from a small scale domestic to large scale industrial technology during the Chalcolithic through Iron Ages c 4300-586 BC in Syro Palestine The ultimate goal is to see if the level or type of olive oil technology used at sites can be determined based on their olive remains However before this could occur the author prepares a methodology the components of which include 1 an ethnographic study investigating how traditional oil pressing and processing affect olive remains and the incorporation of those remains into the archaeological record and 2 experimental studies to determine how different processing methods might affect olive remains and their incorporation into the archaeological record The results from the experimental and ethnographic studies are then applied to archaeological remains from a Late Neolithic site to determine the possible type of processing technology The type of processing indicated by the comparison of the experimental to the archaeological remains crushing in a small basin matches the olive oil processing artifacts and features found at the site The methods used in this study can be applied to other paleoethnobotanical remains and technologies

Contents Introduction Origins and early history of the olive Ethnographic research Experimental research Testing an archaeological sample Olive oil trade and the city state Conclusions
