101 Things Everyone Should Know about Theodore Roosevelt Sean Andrews, 2014-01-01 The inside story of Teddy s life and presidency You probably know that Theodore Roosevelt was the 26th president of the United States but did you also know that he suffered great bouts of homesickness Or that he carried a vial of morphine at all times in case he ever needed to take his own life Though the image of President Theodore Roosevelt is one of fringed suede jackets and wire circles of glass framing a serious and scowling face the man behind this image was a spectacularly intelligent and complex individual 101 Things Everyone Should Know about Theodore Roosevelt explores the nuances of his famous life giving little known facts that complete the picture of Theodore Roosevelt From his crippling childhood to his involvement with the Rough Riders this book celebrates the American icon whose beliefs are still riveting almost 100 years after his death

Growing Up Crazy Clarence Wall, 2025-08-20 Chris awoke in the middle of the night a common occurrence for him as he suffered from an overactive bladder condition and had to get up one or more times most nights to empty his bladder But this time something was very different the greyish walls surrounding around him the hard bed covered with the thin plastic mattress he had been lying on It was hardly the first time that Chris had felt disoriented when he had awakened in the wee hours of the morning There were the times after he had been on military duty and bivouacking with his unit in the field and shortly after coming home when he awoke believing he was out in the field But this wasn t outside some place or in his home Where am I he asked himself He glanced at the metallic toilet across the small room it seemed to be missing a seat and was next to a small metal sink Then he remembered what had happened at least part of it and where and why he was there There were no bars no just a hard metal door with a thin rectangular pane of reinforced glass through which those paid to watch over him could peer in Yes he told himself He was locked up But how did it happen he asked himself and then began to recall some of the events of the previous day that had culminated in him being where he was The narrow highway was clear in both directions no traffic in sight or at least that was what his senses had told him So he made the turn and was now traveling in the opposite direction when he felt the impact of something striking the front passenger side of his vehicle. From his sitting position inside the cab of his pickup truck which was up against dense layers of bushes he didn't see anything unusual certainly nothing that might have collided with his own vehicle. Whatever had struck his truck couldn't have been a very large object he surmised maybe an animal or a rock perhaps a piece of wood or pieces from bushes bordering the narrow highway. Such incidents objects and motor vehicles colliding with each other were quite common on these types of roadways. From his elevated position sitting in his vehicle he continued to survey the area as best he could for something anything that might shed some light on what had happened. But he saw nothing and considered it much too dangerous to exit his vehicle and risk being struck by fast moving traffic. He shook his head still wondering what had happened and finally drove home which was only a mile or so from where he was. When he had arrived home and walked towards the entrance of the house he couldn't believe what he saw extensive damage to the front passenger side of his vehicle. He knew that he had to inform his insurance company about the damage right away but was too shaken up to answer a lot of questions that an insurance representative would ask of him most of which he wouldn't have difficulty answering in his confused condition. He had something to eat and then lay down on the bed to rest. Later while he was cleaning up after himself in the kitchen he heard an undetermined number of vehicles on the gravel of the unpaved poorly maintained road outside his house. When he glanced out the screen door his eyes were overwhelmed by law enforcement vehicles police sheriff highway patrol and even a SWAT team.
