committed mothers undertook the onerous task of recording exactly what their children said and did in response to the stories they shared. Some of their records extended over five years or even longer. Their research, done without funding or academic supervision, offers us unparalleled insight into children's minds long before they learn to speak, let alone learn to read. In Self and Story in Early Childhood, Hugh Crago draws on his unusual combination of expertise in literary studies, developmental psychology, and psychotherapy to re-examine the startling implications of this neglected body of evidence. He highlights how much children can achieve without formal teaching but with the supportive presence of a trusted adult who will participate with them in the story experience. This book will be of great interest to scholars of developmental psychology, early literacy, and narratology, as well as to professionals working with preschoolers. Most of all, it will fascinate parents who themselves share stories with their child.

Inventing a Classroom Kathryn F. Whitmore, Caryl G. Crowell, 1994. What are the patterns of teaching and learning that make a classroom holistic? How do children invent oral and written language? How do they create the culture and curriculum of a classroom? How does the spirit of community and collaboration develop among children and teachers? What are the relationships between literacy, schooling, and socialization as they form among the children? These are a few of the broad questions that Kathy Whitmore and Caryl Crowell answer in this absorbing portrait of Caryl's third-grade classroom, the Sunshine Room. Over the span of a school year, we watch the students in this bicultural classroom, within a bilingual working-class neighborhood, work and develop together as a community of learners. It is the story of how the Sunshine Room, like many whole language classrooms, invents itself and how, in this process, the children themselves are continually inventing oral and written language, culture, and curriculum. In two separate, collaborative voices, the authors carry readers through several critical events in the life of the classroom: the process through which the children and the teachers negotiate the curriculum; the creation of a theme study about the Middle Ages and a vicarious experience of the Middle East war through children's literature and discussions. On an individual level, the deep friendship between Seaira, an English-speaking child from the volunteer community, and Lolita, a bilingual Latina from the barrio, is symbolic of the bicultural experience fostered in the Sunshine Room.

Reading Step by Step, Two Books Are Better Than One! Shari Frost, 2016-06-03. Today's early literacy programs are more demanding than ever. No longer is it sufficient to teach letters, letter sounds, sight words, and simple texts in kindergarten through second grade. Children are expected to read and comprehend texts in a variety of genres with increasing complexity. Then they must integrate the ideas and concepts from those texts into their own writing. Two Books Are Better Than One: Reading and Writing and Talking and Drawing Across Texts in K-2 helps teachers meet those demands. Each chapter contains an anchor lesson focused on a different way of connecting texts, including by theme, characters, perspective, structure, or genre. The lessons feature research-based and common core-aligned strategies: interactive read-alouds, shared reading, and writing; scaffolded small-group reading; accountable talk; close reading; and opinion, narrative, and explanatory writing. Each anchor lesson features two high-quality children's books and each chapter is rounded out with a list of other recommended book pairs to support you in creating your own lessons     Developing Reading Skills Using Fairy Tales Gr. 1-3 ,
