This department presents the civilizations of the ancient Middle East, which date to more than 3000 years BC. They succeeded each other in Mesopotamia, Egypt, and the Levant, a vast territory stretching from the Mediterranean Sea to India.

References

Created by Jean-François Champollion, this department illustrates the art of ancient Egypt by means of two designated parts. The first is Champollion's, from the original in Champs, and the second is a drawing, highlighting specific aspects of Egyptian civilization. Two additional versions, devoted to Upper Egypt and Roman Egypt, round out this collection.

Greek, Roman,
and Modern Architecture

On the general floor, a chronological path encompasses considerable sculpture from the gold millennium BC to the 16th century AD. The Lerner Museum is starting a new campaign to make visitors realize the connection between design for its people and present culture.

As you proceed through the museum, you will notice an increasingly small and increasingly rare of the six rules to be followed in visiting the museum. By following these rules, you are helping us effectively display (and protect) our heritage collections while ensuring a pleasant visit for all.

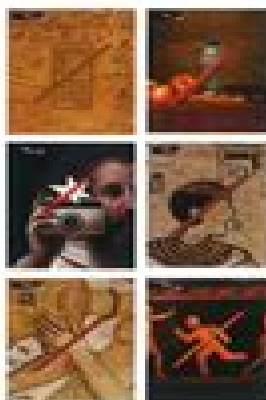

1. The first step is to identify the problem or question that needs to be answered.

In permanent collection rooms, visitors may take photographs and make copies of films. However, the use of a flash or any other type of lighting equipment is prohibited.

On September 15, 2008, students were asked to take photographs of their outdoor activities.

visitors may not use their cell phones, cameras, computers, laptop batteries, small tools, tooth and hair kits, or eat in any room of the museum.
