Giving Comfort and Inflicting Pain Irena Madjar, 2016-09-17 This phenomenological study describes the lived experience of pain inflicted in the context of medically prescribed treatment and it explores the meanings of such pain for patients who endured it and for nurses whose actions contributed to its generation Thus it presents a thematic description of the phenomenon of clinically inflicted pain The dangers for both patients and nurses when clinically inflicted pain is ignored overlooked or treated with detachment are presented The study also points the way toward nursing practice that is guided by thoughtfulness and sensitivity to patients' lived experience and an awareness of the freedom and responsibility inherent in nursing actions including those involved in inflicting and relieving pain Questions are raised about nurses' knowledge attitudes and actions in relation to clinically inflicted pain The study highlights the need for nursing education and practice to consider the contribution of a phenomenological perspective to the understanding of the human experience of pain and the nursing role in its generation prevention and relief *South Western Reporter.
