Clinical Dentistry James W. Clark,1998 Pain Management and the Opioid Epidemic National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine,Health and Medicine Division,Board on Health Sciences Policy,Committee on Pain Management and Regulatory Strategies to Address Prescription Opioid Abuse,2017-09-28 Drug overdose driven largely by overdose related to the use of opioids is now the leading cause of unintentional injury death in the United States The ongoing opioid crisis lies at the intersection of two public health challenges reducing the burden of suffering from pain and containing the rising toll of the harms that can arise from the use of opioid medications Chronic pain and opioid use disorder both represent complex human conditions affecting millions of Americans and causing untold disability and loss of function In the context of the growing opioid problem the U S Food and Drug Administration FDA launched an Opioids Action Plan in early 2016 As part of this plan the FDA asked the National Academies of Sciences Engineering and Medicine to convene a committee to update the state of the science on pain research care and education and to identify actions the FDA and others can take to respond to the opioid epidemic with a particular focus on informing FDA s development of a formal method for incorporating individual and societal considerations into its risk benefit framework for opioid approval and monitoring Pain Management and the Opioid Epidemic National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine (U.S.). Committee on Pain Management and Regulatory Strategies to Address Prescription Opioid Abuse,2017 Drug overdose driven largely by overdose related to the use of opioids is now the leading cause of unintentional injury death in the United States The ongoing opioid crisis lies at the intersection of two public health challenges reducing the burden of suffering from pain and containing the rising toll of the harms that can arise from the use of opioid medications Chronic pain and opioid use disorder both represent complex human conditions affecting millions of Americans and causing untold disability and loss of function In the context of the growing opioid problem the U S Food and Drug Administration FDA launched an Opioids Action Plan in early 2016 As part of this plan the FDA asked the National Academies of Sciences Engineering and Medicine to convene a committee to update the state of the science on pain research care and education and to identify actions the FDA and others can take to respond to the opioid epidemic with a particular focus on informing FDA s development of a formal method for incorporating individual and societal considerations into its risk benefit framework for opioid approval and monitoring Pain Relief And Opioids Bruce Nicholson,2003-01-01

Pain Management for People with Serious Illness in the Context of the Opioid Use Disorder Epidemic National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine,Health and Medicine Division,Board on Health Sciences Policy,Board on Health Care Services,Roundtable on Quality Care for People with Serious Illness,2019-07-01 The United States is facing an opioid use disorder epidemic with opioid overdoses killing 47 000 people in the U S in 2017 The past three decades have witnessed a significant increase in the prescribing of opioids for pain based on the belief that patients were being undertreated for their pain coupled with a widespread misunderstanding of the addictive properties of opioids This increase in prescribing of opioids also saw a parallel increase in addiction and overdose In an effort to address this ongoing epidemic of opioid misuse policy and regulatory changes have been enacted that have served to limit the availability of prescription opioids for pain management Overlooked amid the intense focus on efforts to end the opioid use disorder epidemic is the perspective of clinicians who are experiencing a significant amount of daily tension as opioid regulations and restrictions have limited their ability to treat the pain of their patients facing serious illness Increased public and clinician scrutiny of opioid use has resulted in patients with serious illness facing stigma and other challenges when filling prescriptions for their pain medications or obtaining the prescription in the first place Thus clinicians patients and their families are caught between the responses to the opioid use disorder epidemic and the need to manage pain related to serious illness The National Academies of Sciences Engineering and Medicine sponsored a workshop on November 29 2018 to examine these unintended consequences of the responses to the opioid use disorder epidemic for patients families communities and clinicians and to consider potential policy opportunities to address them This publication summarizes the presentations and discussions from the workshop Opioids in Non-Cancer Pain Cathy Stannard,Michael Coupe,Tony Pickering,2013-03-21 Opioids have been used as analgesics for many years and their use in the management of acute pain related to trauma and surgery is well established However patients with persisting pain need a pain management plan that brings relief of symptoms without adverse effects in both the short and longer terms The prescribing of opioids for chronic non cancer pain has increased substantially since the first edition of this pocketbook was published prompting considerable debate regarding the appropriateness of prescribing for this indication and the potential harms to individuals and to society that may result from this trend This second edition of Opioids in Non Cancer Pain brings clinicians up to date on the current use of opioid drugs in patients with non cancer pain and highlights the potential benefits of therapy as well as the problems that can occur The edition includes new chapters on the history of opioids to help contextualize the following discussions and a new chapter covering the emerging field of pharmacogenomics which provides explanations for differing responsiveness to opioids and propensity to adverse effects An international perspective on opioid prescribing trends is also a valuable new addition
