Fantasies of the Master Race Ward Churchill, 1998 Chosen an Outstanding Book on the Subject of Human Rights in the United States by the Gustavus Myers Center for the Study of Human Rights In this volume of incisive essays Ward Churchill looks at representations of American Indians in literature and film delineating a history of cultural propaganda that has served to support the continued colonization of Native America During each phase of the genocide of American Indians the media has played a critical role in creating easily digestible stereotypes of Indians for popular consumption Literature about Indians was first written and published in order to provoke and sanctify warfare against them Later the focus changed to enlisting public support for civilizing the savages stripping them of their culture and assimilating them into the dominant society Now in the final stages of cultural genocide it is the appropriation and stereotyping of Native culture that establishes control over knowledge and truth The primary means by which this is accomplished is through the powerful publishing and film industries Whether they are the tragically doomed noble savages walking into the sunset of Dances With Wolves or Carlos Castaneda's Don Juan the exotic mythical Indians constitute no threat to the established order Literature and art crafted by the dominant culture are an insidious political force disinforming people who might otherwise develop a clearer understanding of indigenous struggles for justice and freedom This book is offered to counter that deception and to move people to take action on issues confronting American Indians today

Audit Cultures Marilyn Strathern, 2003-12-08 Do audit cultures deliver greater responsibility or do they stifle creative thought We are all increasingly subjected to auditing and alongside that subject to accountability for our behaviour and actions Audit cultures pervade in the workplace our governmental and public institutions as well as academia However audit practices themselves have consequences beneficial and detrimental that often go unexamined This book examines how pervasive practices of accountability are the political and cultural conditions under which accountability flourishes and the consequences of their application Twelve social anthropologists look at this influential and controversial phenomenon and map out the effects around Europe and the Commonwealth as well as in contexts such as the European Commission the International Monetary Fund and Academic institutions The result provides an excellent insight into auditing and its dependence on precepts of economic efficiency and ethical practice This point of convergence between these moral and financial priorities provides an excellent opening for debate on the culture of management and accountability
