Oceanographers In Action:

Oceanographers in Action Erik Bergaust, William O. Foss, 1968 Describes what oceanography is and what oceanographers do including brief explanations of some current projects the study of currents measuring the geochemistry of seawater observing the behavior of fish and others      Seawatchers; Oceanographers in Action William Bixby, 1967 Describes the work of the oceanographers men who study the ocean in all its aspects      Our Nation and the Sea: a Plan for National Action United States. Commission on Marine Science, Engineering, and Resources, 1969      Sharing the Resources of the South China Sea Mark John Valencia, Jon M. Van Dyke, Noel A. Ludwig, 1997-05-20 All of the national claims to South China Sea area islands they also present problems of cost efficiency An institutionalized dialogue would add structure stability to the discussions confidence building measures CBMs could help move the situation forward but neither would suffice as a solution The creation of a regional multilateral resource management body could reduce the regional tension however Many international regional precedents provide valuable lessons for regime building in the South China Sea The illustrations presented stimulate constructive discussion of a comprehensive multilateral interim solution to these difficult dangerous conflicts This book will interest assist decision makers negotiators academics desirous of a peaceful solution to these disputes      Federal Register , 2007-06-29      Federal Oceanic and Atmospheric Organization, Hearings Before the Subcommittee on Oceanography...91-1 and 2, on S. 2841, S.2802 United States. Investigating the oceans Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Science and Technology Committee, Great Britain. Parliament. House of Commons. Select Committee on Science and Technology, 2007-10-18 Investigating the Oceans Tenth report of session 2006 07 Vol 2 Oral and written Evidence      On the Generation and Directional Recording of Waves in the Arctic Ocean Leonard A. LeSchack, 1965 An experiment to investigate the directional nature and the possible generation mechanisms for waves on the Arctic Ocean an ocean almost entirely covered with sea ice is described The waves under consideration have periods between 10 and 100 seconds and amplitudes between 0.001 and 2.0 centimeters In the present work an array of two continuously recording gravimeters 1.240 meters apart was established at drift station ARLIS II Observed waves with distinct periods were associated with a storm over Siberia A continuously recording microbarograph sensitive to atmospheric micropressure oscillations in the 10 to 100 second period range was also installed at ARLIS II Distinct oscillations were observed in this period range having amplitude of from 20 to 400 dynes sq cm Power spectra of micropressure records made before during and after a storm show that oscillation amplitude is proportional to the period of the oscillation and speed of local winds Cross correlation between the micropressure records and wave records taken with a gravimeter at the same location as the microbarograph shows a positive correlation between the micropressure waves and the ocean waves This correlation appears to vary with the direction of the local surface wind These micropressure waves contained sufficient force to bend the ice and generate the observed water waves Author      Connecting People to Their

Blue Economy and Ocean Sustainable Development in a Globalised World: Social, Political, Economic and Environmental Issues Ibukun J. Adewumi, Andrei Polejack, Joanna Vince, Maree E. Fudge, 2023-12-05 In the last decade the concept of a Blue Economy has ignited a deep theoretical debate Ranging from the integration of the triple bottom line of sustainability to the optimization of profit from ocean exploitation the meaning of the term blue economy differs considerably between epistemic communities and even more so among national and regional policies There is a general sense of the opportunity to realise enhanced social and economic benefits from the sustainable utilisation of their ocean and coastal resources under the umbrella framework of blue economy Blue economy is gaining traction already as a significant component of national policies even in spite of a clear conceptualization of the term Many countries are now preparing national policies towards realising their blue economy ambitions utilizing the concept as they see fit Likewise multilateral and regional organisations are developing guidelines and providing investment in new research technologies and financing tools that promote blue economy Critical challenges abound in particular in less privileged countries These include the gap in research capabilities governments prioritizing social wellbeing and economic profit in contrast to environmental protection the identification of new and emerging areas of ocean economic activity that are both socially and ecologically sustainable and holds viable business models that can attract private investment
