Rhetoric, Media, and the Narratives of US Foreign Policy Adam

Lusk, 2021-12-30 Rhetoric Media and the Narratives of US Foreign Policy Making Enemies studies the process of communicating threats to the US public and explores when and why the American public believes another country or regime is a threat. Through a comparative and historical study, the author focuses on how the media environment enables and constrains rhetorical strategies deployed to construct, reproduce, and change narratives about a threat. Recent literature on threat inflation, securitization, and critical security studies returned to the concept of threat. Building on this renewed conceptual attention, this book examines why and how policy makers and other public figures, in particular the President, convince the public about a threat and will be of interest to students and academics in the disciplines of political science, international relations, foreign policy, security studies, and contemporary history. Networked Media, Networked

Rhetorics Damien Smith Pfister, 2016-01-01 In Networked Media Networked Rhetorics, Damien Pfister explores communicative practices in networked media environments, analyzing in particular how the blogosphere has changed the conduct and coverage of public debate. Pfister shows how the late modern imaginary was susceptible to deliberation traps related to invention, emotion, and expertise, and how bloggers have played a role in helping contemporary public deliberation evade these traps. Three case studies at the heart of Networked Media Networked Rhetorics show how new intermediaries, including bloggers, generate publicity, solidarity, and translation in the networked public sphere. Bloggers flooding the zone in the wake of Trent Lott's controversial toast to Strom Thurmond in 2002 demonstrated their ability to invent and circulate novel arguments. The pre-2003 invasion reports from the Baghdad blogger illustrated how solidarity is built through affective connections, and the science blog RealClimate continues to serve as a rapid response site for the translation of expert claims for public audiences. Networked Media Networked Rhetorics concludes with a bold outline for rhetorical studies after the internet. Political Rhetoric, Social Media, and American Presidential Campaigns Janet Johnson, 2020-12-10

Politics and Rhetoric James Martin, 2013-10-08 Rhetoric is the art of speech and persuasion the study of argument and in Classical times an essential component in the education of the citizen For rhetoricians politics is a skill to be performed and not merely observed Yet in modern democracies we often suspect political speech of malign intent and remain uncertain how properly to interpret and evaluate it Public arguments are easily dismissed as mere rhetoric rather than engaged critically with citizens encouraged to be passive consumers of a media spectacle rather than active participants in a political dialogue This volume provides a clear and instructive introduction to the skills of the rhetorical arts It surveys critically the place of rhetoric in contemporary public life and assesses its virtues as a tool of political theory Questions about power and identity in the practices of political communication remain central to the rhetorical tradition how do we know that we are not being manipulated by those who seek to persuade us Only a grasp of the techniques of rhetoric and an understanding of how they manifest themselves in contemporary politics argues the author can guide us in answering these perennial questions Politics and Rhetoric draws together in a comprehensive and highly accessible way relevant ideas from discourse analysis classical rhetoric updated to a modern setting relevant issues in contemporary political theory and numerous carefully chosen examples and issues from current politics It will be essential reading for all students of politics and political communications
