Jacobs, 2011-03-28 In Governing for the Long Term Alan M Jacobs investigates the conditions under which elected governments invest in long term social benefits at short term social cost Jacobs contends that along the path to adoption investment oriented policies must surmount three distinct hurdles to future oriented state action a problem of electoral risk rooted in the scarcity of voter attention a problem of prediction deriving from the complexity of long term policy effects and a problem of institutional capacity arising from interest groups preferences for distributive gains over intertemporal bargains Testing this argument through a four country historical analysis of pension policymaking the book illuminates crucial differences between the causal logics of distributive and intertemporal politics and makes a case for bringing trade offs over time to the center of the study of policymaking
