Plummer,2004-01-01 Internationalization of the world economy has made trade a key factor in the growth potential of nearly every economy Hence economists have become increasingly interested in the determinants of international trade and competitiveness Empirical Models i Developing Nations and the Politics of Global Integration Stephan Haggard,1995-04-01 Developing countries are becoming important players in the world economy Although they were slow to liberalize trade they are now joining the more economically advanced nations in implementing trade reforms and in taking steps to deepen global integration The lowering of trade barriers and the growth of foreign investment have benefited the developing countries but have also created vulnerabilities including risks of dependence and political interference Is deeper integration in the best interest of developing countries In this book part of the Integrating National Economies series Stephen Haggard examines the position of the developing countries in the international trade regime Focusing on the nations of East and Southeast Asia and Latin American Haggard explores the cause of economic liberalization policies in the developing nations He argues that various international constraints such as economic shocks and political pressures from the economically advanced nations pushed developing countries to open up to international competition and to pursue economic relations with advanced industrial states Haggard addresses such central questions as Will developing countries benefit from the deep integration agenda Will they instead join closed regional blocs that fragment the international economy Will the developing nations orient themselves toward the multilateral institutions particularly the World Trade Organization or will they gravitate toward regional arrangements Haggard argues that the advanced developing countries have become strong supporters of the multilateral system and that the extent of regionalism has been over stated He contends that a more serious threat is the lure of bilateralism and the effort of the advanced industrial states to impose standards on developing countries that are inappropriate or politically counterproductive A volume of Brookings Integrating National Economies Series Avoiding the Apocalypse: The Future of the Two Koreas [ISBN not on www] Noland, Marcus,2000 The Journal of American-East Asian Relations ,2001 Partisan Investment in the Global Economy Pablo M. Pinto,2013-03-29 Pinto develops a partisan theory of foreign direct investment FDI arguing that left wing governments choose policies that allow easier entry by foreign investors more than right wing governments and that foreign investors prefer to invest in countries governed by the left To reach this determination the book derives the conditions under which investment flows should be expected to affect the relative demand for the services supplied by economic actors in host countries Based on these expected distributive consequences a political economy model of the regulation of FDI and changes in investment performance within countries and over time is developed The theory is tested using both cross national statistical analysis and two case studies exploring the development of the foreign investment regimes and their performance over the past century in Argentina and South Korea Governing Financial Globalization Andrew Baker,David Hudson,Richard Woodward,2005-02 This volume provides a wide ranging discussion of both the potential and the problems arising from the application of multi level governance literature to the monetary and financial domain US Department of State Dispatch,1995
