

Literary Essay FIA2 - shaping of identities.

Aaliyah Mullings

Over the years, many literary pieces have helped shape the values and beliefs of generations. Authors have intricately created texts that inspire audiences. We often see exaggerated gender roles and stereotypes that often parallel our own society. The characters in a piece of literature can truly demonstrate the real-life qualities people today show. Two texts that highlight the struggles of misogyny are The Years of Wonders written by Geraldine Brooks (2001), which follows Anna and her plight during the plague in the 17th century, and the dystopian film The Handmaid's Tale (2017) directed by Reed Morano, where protagonist Offred is forced into sex slavery. In the world we currently live in, it is common for women to be repressed for simply living and going about their daily lives. From gender bias to unfair stereotypes, women are constantly being put down in society. The transformation of both main characters highlights the resilience and strength of women in society despite unfair adversities and challenges. The authors incorporate adversity, gender and religious themes to examine these qualities. The audiences, in both The Handmaid's Tale and The Years of Wonders, are positioned to view the protagonist as an intelligent woman oppressed by adversities caused by societal norms and their environments. However, we see Offred and Anna overcome these challenges due to their adaptable nature and intelligent minds. The women in these texts are faced with cruel patriarchal societies dominated by men and challenges to rise above the government and expectations. Both characters, Anna and Offred demonstrate adaptability and resilience to survive. Although both characters are slightly different, they both have similar implications of the adversities endured in their respective worlds.

In their patriarchal society dominated by men, both characters Anna and Offred endure restricted rights and limited freedoms. Anna is expected to adhere to traditional gender roles and fulfill societal expectations of women in the 17th century. However, Anna defies these norms when she takes on the crucial responsibility of attending to the medical needs of sick villagers affected by the plague. Anna breaks the pattern of a male-dominated society by learning herb lore and midwifery and ministering to the sick within the village she lives in. Proving others wrong as she becomes responsible for the welfare of many citizens. "The housemaid knows more than the London surgeon? I think not." (pg. 285). Her resilience and skills are proven by the successful delivery of the Bradford child and the saving of Mrs Bradford's life. The mastery of her skills is what ultimately saves the town in its time of need. As a result of the town's sexist views, Anna was unable to pursue a career in nursing and midwifery until the plague hit. Even at this point, she was only able to practice nursing due to her resilience and selfless acts of service. From Offred's perspective on the patriarchal society, she is represented as a 'birthing machine.' In multiple scenes, she attempts to use her intelligence to face all the challenges she is confronted with. In Episode 1, Offred is violently taken away from her husband and son when they are trying to escape the country by running away from the government. Later in that episode, Offred is sent to a 'new family' and becomes

Fear Susan Jennifer Navarette, 2014-07-11 During the last decades of the nineteenth century Charles Darwin Thomas Henry Huxley Walter Pater and others changed the nature of thought concerning the human body and the physical environment that had shaped it In response the 1890s saw the publication of a series of remarkable literary works that had their genesis in the intense scientific and aesthetic activity of those preceding decades texts that emphasized themes of degeneration and were themselves stylistically decompositive with language both a surrogate for physical deformity and a source of anxiety Susan J Navarette examines the ways in which scientific and cultural concerns of late nineteenth century England are coded in the horror literature of the period By contextualizing the structural stylistic and thematic systems developed by writers seeking to reenact textually the entropic forces they perceived in the natural world Navarette reconstructs the late Victorian mentalit She analyzes aesthetic responses to trends in contemporary science and explores horror writers use of scientific methodologies to support their perception that a long awaited period of cultural decline had begun In her analysis of the classics Turn of the Screw and Heart of Darkness Navarette shows how James and Conrad made artistic use of earlier scientific readings of the body She also considers works by lesser known authors Walter de la Mare Vernon Lee and Arthur Machen who produced fin de siècle stories that took the form of hybrid literary monstrosities To underscore the fascination with bodily decay and deformation that these writers explored The Shape of Fear is enhanced with prints and line drawings by Victor Hugo James Ensor and other artists of the day This elegantly written book formulates a new canon of late Victorian fiction that will intrigue scholars of literature and cultural history

Shaping Courtliness in Medieval France Laurie Shepard, Daniel E. O'Sullivan, 2013 The question of what medieval courtliness was both as a literary influence and as a historical reality is debated in this volume The concept of courtliness forms the theme of this collection of essays Focused on works written in the Francophone world between the twelfth and fifteenth centuries they examine courtliness as both an historical privilege and aliterary ideal and as a concept that operated on and was informed by complex social and economic realities Several essays reveal how courtliness is subject to satire or is the subject of exhortation in works intended for noblemen and women not to mention ambitious bourgeois Others more strictly literary in their focus explore the witty thoughtful and innovative responses of writers engaged in the conscious process of elevating the new vernacular culture through the articulation of its complexities and contradictions The volume as a whole uniting philosophical theoretical philological and cultural approaches demonstrates that medieval courtliness is an ideal that fascinates us to this day It is thus a fitting tribute to the scholarship of Matilda Tomaryn Bruckner in its exploration of the profound and wide ranging ideas that define her contribution to the field DANIEL E O SULLIVAN is Associate Professor of French at the University of Mississippi LAURIE SHEPHARD is Associate Professor of Italian at Boston College in Chestnut Hill Massachusetts Contributors Peter Haidu Donald Maddox Michel Andr Bossy Kristin Burr Joan Tasker Grimbert David Hult Virgine Greene Logan Whalen Evelyn Birge Vitz Elizabeth W Poe Daniel E O Sullivan William Schenck Nadia Margolis Laine Doggett E Jane Burns Nancy FreemanRegalado Laurie Shephard Sarah White

The Shape of the Gospel Robert C.
