The Role of Islam in the Legal System of Pakistan Martin Lau, 2006 Starting in 1947 this volume examines the way Pakistani judges have dealt with the controversial issue of Islam in the past 50 years The book's focus on reported case law offers a new perspective on the Islamisation of Pakistan's legal system in which Islam emerges as more than just a challenge to Western conceptions of human rights

Law, Society, and Economy Richard Rawlings, London School of Economics and Political Science, 1997 This centenary volume of essays explores a number of related themes which differentiate and characterize the approach of the LSE Central to this is the assumption that law is one of the social sciences and that law should be studied in context as a social

The Ethics and Conduct of Lawyers in England and Wales Andrew Boon, 2023-11-30 The fourth edition of this respected textbook examines the regulation and conduct of lawyers in England and Wales and addresses new developments in the field including those in international practice sexual misconduct and the environment Focusing on the practice of and interrelationship between solicitors and barristers the book provides background to current arrangements while exploring contemporary rules of conduct systems of regulation and controversies The four main parts cover client duties wider obligations key contexts and regulation Parts one to three provide an academic introduction to the subject of lawyers ethics They are suitable as a core text for a semester course at undergraduate level providing grounding for vocational training such as the Solicitors Qualifying Examination Comparisons are made with conduct rules applying in other leading common law jurisdictions where relevant These parts also explore links between the subject of ethics and the development of lawyers practical skills Part four applies the general principles to three elements of regulation practice admission and discipline The approach throughout is socio legal While the essential law is described relevant social science research informs consideration of issues and debates

Paths to Justice

Scotland Hazel Genn, Alan Paterson, 2001-10-23 The publication in 1999 of Paths to Justice presented the results of the most wide ranging survey of public use of and attitudes towards the civil justice system ever conducted in England and Wales by either an independent body or government agency Paths to Justice in Scotland replicates that survey focusing upon the experiences of ordinary citizens in Scotland as they grapple with the kinds of problems that could ultimately end in the civil courts In an era of almost unprecedented interest in the resolution of civil disputes and in the procedures and public funding available to assist in the process there remains a lacuna in terms of knowledge of public use of the civil justice system in Scotland which this major survey sets out to fill In it the authors identify how often people experience problems for which there might be a legal solution and how they set about solving them Revealing crucial differences in the approach taken to different kinds of potential legal problems the study describes the factors that influence decisions about whether and where to seek advice about problems and whether and when to go to law In addition to exploring experiences of courts tribunals and ADR processes the study also provides important insights into public confidence in the courts and the judiciary in Scotland For the first time the study reveals the public's perspective on access to civil justice and makes a significant contribution to debate concerning public experience expectations and needs when trying to resolve justiciable problems

Mediation Carrie Menkel-Meadow, 2018-05-08 This title was first published in 2001 This volume of essays explores the theoretical and jurisprudential bases of mediated forms of dispute resolution from legal anthropological sociological psychological and political sources It also presents ongoing disputes about the field itself including its threat to conventional litigation and justice seeking adjudication and its promise in providing more humane and tailored solutions to human problems Unbundling Legal Services Forrest S. Mosten, 2000 This book explains how firms can start unbundling their law practice and offer this new consumer oriented approach to legal service delivery to their clients
