Shattering Silence Women Natl Ism:

Shattering Silence Begoña Aretxaga, 2020-09-01 This book the first feminist ethnography of the violence in Northern Ireland is an analysis of a political conflict through the lens of gender The case in point is the working class Catholic resistance to British rule in Northern Ireland During the 1970s women in Catholic nationalist districts of Belfast organized themselves into street committees and led popular forms of resistance against the policies of the government of Northern Ireland and after its demise against those of the British In the abundant literature on the conflict however the political tactics of nationalist women have passed virtually unnoticed Begoña Aretxaga argues here that these hitherto invisible practices were an integral part of the social dynamic of the conflict and had important implications for the broader organization of nationalist forms of resistance and gender relationships Combining interpretative anthropology and poststructuralist feminist theory Aretxaga contributes not only to anthropology and feminist studies but also to research on ethnic and social conflict by showing the gendered constitution of political violence She goes further than asserting that violence affects men and women differently by arguing that the manners in which violence is gendered are not fixed but constantly shifting depending on the contingencies of history social class and ethnic identity Thus any attempt at subverting gender inequality is necessarily colored by other dimensions of political experience

Racial Situations John Hartigan Jr., 2020-10-06. Racial Situations challenges perspectives on race that rely upon oft-repeated claims that race is culturally constructed and hence simply false and distorting. John Hartigan asserts instead that we need to explain how race is experienced by people as a daily reality. His starting point is the lives of white people in Detroit. As a distinct minority, whites in this city can rarely assume they are racially unmarked and normative privileges generally associated with whiteness. Hartigan conveys their attempts to make sense of how race matters in their lives and in Detroit generally. Rather than compiling a generic sampling of white views, Hartigan develops an ethnographic account of whites in three distinct neighborhoods: an inner-city underclass area, an adjacent debatably gentrifying community, and a working-class neighborhood bordering one of the city's wealthy suburbs. In tracking how racial tensions develop or become defused in each of these sites, Hartigan argues that whites do not articulate their racial identity strictly in relation to a symbolic figure of black Otherness. He demonstrates instead that intraracial class distinctions are critical in whites' determinations of when and how race matters. In each community, the author charts a series of names: hillbilly, gentrifier, and racist, which whites use to make distinctions among themselves. He shows how these terms function in everyday discourses that reflect the racial consciousness of the communities and establish boundaries of status and privilege among whites in these areas.

Muscular Nationalism Sikata Banerjee, 2012. Concerned chiefly with views and events of the 19th and 20th centuries, Muscular Nationalism discusses deviations from a putative ideal of femininity characterised by chastity and inactivity.

Gender, Nation and Popular Film in India Sikata Banerjee,2016-12-08 Interpretations of manhood have unfolded in India within a middle class cultural milieu shaped by an assertive self confidence fuelled by liberalisation a process by which India has been integrated into the global political economy and the prominence of Hindutva or Hindu nationalist politics This book unpacks a particular gendered vision of nation in the modern Indian context by drawing on popular films This muscular nationalism is an intersection of a specific vision of masculinity with the political doctrine of nationalism The idea of nation is animated by an idea of manhood associated with martial prowess muscular strength and toughness but coupled with the image and construct of virtuous woman a gendered binary of martial man and chaste woman The author skilfully and convincingly draws together issues of political economy including globalization and neoliberalism with majoritarian politics and popular culture thus showing how disparate strands intersect
